Some Details of Trouble on Russian Torpedo Boats at Vladivostok.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 1.—According to the official report of the recent mutinous outbreak of sailors at Vladivostok, the crews of three torpedo boat destroyers, the Skory, Serdity and Tretyshny, mutinied, hoisted the red flag and shelled the port, doing considerable damage to buildings and killing some soldiers and civilians. The Skory, on board of which were three revolutionary agitators, including one woman, took the lead in the mutiny, the crew rising at the instigation of the agitators, killing the commander of the boat and wounding the other officers, who were overpowered and confined below decks. The fire of the rebellious torpedo boat destroyers was answered by the batteries ashore and from the gunboat Mendjur and the torpedo boat destroyers Grosorov, Smely and others. They surrounded the Skory and poured a raking fire into her, which battered her to pieces, exploding her two boilers and caused fire to break out on board. Nearly all the mutineers of the Skory were killed on the vessel. The three or four survivors threw themselves into the sea. The mutiny on board the Tretyshny was quelled by her own crew, after six of the mutineers had been killed and six wounded. General Count Unterberger, commanding the military district at the Amur, has arrived at Vladivostok and assumed charge of the situation. The United States embassy here today received a dispatch from the consul at Vladivostok saying that the American who was wounded during the bombardment of Vladivostok by the mutinous torpedo boat destroyers is Harry Nietert, an employee of the Pacific Commercial company, whose building was struck by a shell. Captain Baron Fersen, commander of the Port of Vladivostok, who formerly was the Russian naval attaché at Washington, his assistant, Captain Glizan and Col. Silman, the chief quartermaster, have been officially reprimanded on account of the Vladivostok mutiny. Silman's reprimand is couched in the most severe terms, indicating that the mutiny was not purely revolutionary but was based on service conditions to a certain extent.

MANUEL TRAINING CLASS TO MAKE GYMNASIUM APPARATUS

Part of Equipment for New Schools Will Be Built at High School.

Boys in the manual training department of the Fort Wayne high school will make a large portion of the apparatus to be used in equipping the gymnasiums of both the Hanna and the Jefferson schools. The school board has taken up the matter of fitting the new schools with proper equipment for gymnasium work, and Trustee Anselm Fuebner said today that while it will be necessary to purchase a portion of the paraphernalia required, it has been found that a large part of it can be manufactured in the manual training department of the high school, and pupils there will be given the work to do. The plan will work a considerable saving, as well as supplying some practical work for the manual training classes.

GREAT STRIKE WILL TIE UP BRITISH RAILROADS

Amalgamated Society Votes to Quit Work—Thousands Will be Idle.

London, Nov. 1.—The executive committee of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants today adopted a resolution to call a general strike. The decision to call a general railway strike was reached after five hours deliberation by the executive committee of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants with the advisory committee appointed by the three conferences of the society last June at Birmingham, Glasgow and Dublin. Secrecy is maintained regarding the result of the ballot but it is understood that from 7,000 to 8,000 are in favor of a strike and at least 8,000 to 10,000 belonging to the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants will stop work.

FEES BELONG TO THE COUNTY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 1.—The supreme court today decided that fees for giving election notices are a part of the county treasury and must be paid into the county treasury as the property of the county upon drawing their salaries.

NO TRACE OF COMEDIAN WHO IS UNDER BAD CHARGES—Wife Has a Theory.

New York, Nov. 1.—The police have thrown a drag-net over New York, and every clue is being run down to capture Raymond Hitchcock, the actor accused of offenses against three young girls. Hitchcock disappeared suddenly from the city Wednesday and his wife, Flora Zabelle, the actress, and the police, have no knowledge of his whereabouts. Mrs. Hitchcock declares that her husband has either been murdered or kidnapped by a band of blackmailers who, she states, have been hounding the actor for months. The police have learned that a man resembling Hitchcock sailed on the Majestic on Wednesday and a wireless telegram has been sent to the captain of the ship asking him to have the actor held by the English police if he is aboard the vessel. Search also is being made for Della Mackenzie, one of the girls whose stories resulted in Hitchcock's indictment. It was learned today that Miss Mackenzie told her story to the children's society early in the fall, after which she became reconciled with her family and returned home. The agent of the society said today that the girl had disappeared from her home October 1st. Hitchcock's examination was set for yesterday afternoon and the assistant district attorney has moved that his bail be forfeited. Hitchcock's counsel, however, secured an adjournment of the case until next Thursday, to have an opportunity of finding the fugitive.

MAY BE IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Washington police officials and detectives are looking today for Raymond Hitchcock, the missing New York comedian. Last night it was reported to the police by a man who asserts that he has known Hitchcock intimately for years, that the actor arrived at the Pennsylvania station about 6 o'clock p. m. on a train from New York. He called a cab and was driven directly to a prominent hotel.

OCTOBER WAS GOOD FOR CORPORATE CONCERNS

Capital Merged in New Corporations Exceeded Month in 1906.

New York, Nov. 1.—According to the Journal of Commerce, new charters filed in the eastern states in October for all classes of corporations, with an individual capital of $1,000, or more, represented a total capitalization of $79,100,000, which compares with $76,000,000 in September and $128,550,000 in October last year. The grand total of all corporations incorporated in October with a capitalization of $100,000 and over, including other states than those of the east, was $132,422,000, against $113,660,000 in September and $375,376,000 in October a year ago. Conditions generally in October this year militated to a greater extent than any previous month of 1907 against the promotion of new enterprises of any description. It is not surprising, therefore, that the aggregate incorporations should fall so largely below those of last year.

BOY RUN OVER BY WAGON.

Little Son of R. C. Elliott Sustains Painful Bruises.

Morris Elliott, 8 years old, the little son of R. C. Elliott, residing at 241 Masterson avenue, was run over by a lumber wagon at Lafayette and Wallace streets as he was returning from school at noon today and was painfully, though not seriously, injured. He sustained some bruises about the chest and arms, and a slight laceration upon the head. The driver of the wagon, it is said, did not stop to ascertain the extent of the boy's injuries, and his identity was not learned. The injured lad was carried to his home and a physician called to attend him.

RECEIVER NOW IN CONTROL.

New York, Nov. 1.—Control of the Knickerbocker Trust company, which closed its doors last week, was today assumed by the receiver appointed at the request of the state attorney general. Tellers of the company began today to pay the interest on bonds and to cash dividend checks payable at that institution. Clark Williams, state superintendent of banking, said that the attorney general had given the trust company permission to resume its duties as fiscal agent and trustee. The money paid out today was received by the company since the bank examiners took charge and for the express purpose of paying interest and dividends.

MONEY FOR PAYROLLS.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 1.—At a meeting of the Cincinnati Clearing House association last night it was decided to meet the demands for payroll purposes today and tomorrow with currency as usual. The heavy demands for currency for this purpose come on the last two days of the week and it is estimated that $2,000,000 will be required. The Clearing House certificate committee reported that no application had thus far been made for assistance by any bank and that from present indications none will be made.

RUN ON BANK STARTED.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—A report detrimental to the Bank of Secured Savings in Allegheny was responsible for a run on that bank today. The bank is a small one and the depositors who withdrew their deposits were foreigners. The run created no interest or had any effect. The run on the All Nations bank which started Wednesday is at an end. Foreigners also started this run. The stock exchange remained closed.

VIRGINIA BANK SUSPENDS.

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 1.—The People's bank of Portsmouth with a capitalization of $50,000, failed to open today owing to a heavy demand of depositors yesterday and inability to realize needed cash on its assets. The bank is declared to be entirely solvent and an effort is being made to raise sufficient cash for its reopening soon.

PREFERS TO LABOR WHILE ON THE GROUND

Taft Explains Changes in Itinerary of His Home-Coming Trip.

Manila, Nov. 1.—Secretary Taft says there is no important significance in the change of his itinerary for the homeward voyage. The facts about the proposed change in the date of leaving Manila, he declares, are simple. "It was suggested," he said, "that I leave Manila on the original date in order to arrive home on the original date, but there exist a number of administrative matters here requiring attention, and I can better consider them on the ground than from Washington. I have, therefore, decided to remain until November 9th. I leave Vladivostok on the 19th, going both to St. Petersburg and Berlin, but only as a visitor on route home."

FANNY SHOUF GETS CHANCE.

Fanny Shouf said in the city court this morning that she got discouraged yesterday because her husband beat her and she took three whistles and that was all she knew about being picked up helplessly drunk on East Washington boulevard in the afternoon. She said she was going out of the city and she was placed in charge of the chief of police.

SHOT THE LOVE OF TROUBLE OUT OF NAVAJOS

Major Hirst Reports on Trouble With Indians in Southern Utah.

Washington, Nov. 1.—According to a dispatch received at the war department today from Major R. L. Hirst, chief of staff of the department of Colorado at Denver, it is believed that the Navajo trouble in southern Utah and Arizona is near at end. The dispatch shows that those killed in the recent encounter were Indians and includes a report from Captain Willard, who commanded the expedition that was sent to the scene of the trouble. The message reports the return of Captain Willard's command, a battalion of the Fifth cavalry, from Aneth, Utah, with ten Indian prisoners. "I captured prisoners," says Captain Willard, "four miles east of Aneth at dawn October 25th. Byllille and followers opened fire on Indian police and my men and skirmishers returned for twenty minutes in which three Indians were killed and one seriously wounded. One cavalry horse slightly wounded. No other casualties. Prisoners here in guard house. Full reports will follow by mail as soon as possible. No further trouble apprehended."

MAN AND WIFE WERE FOUND DYING IN A HOTEL ROOM

Were Brought Low by Pistol Wounds That Were Self-Inflicted.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 1.—Hearing two shots fired in rapid succession early today, the employees of the Highland hotel burst into a room and found Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Kirwan, of this city, apparently dying from bullet wounds, which the husband claimed were self-inflicted. At the hospital Kirwan recovered sufficiently to say that he and his wife had decided to kill themselves. He did not give a reason.

WOMAN FREIGHTENED TO DEATH BY A CAT'S LEAP

Mrs. Purdy at Wabash, Fell Dead When Tabby Came Through Window.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 1.—Mrs. Alfred Purdy, 41 years of age, of a nervous temperament, but seemingly in excellent health, was frightened to death today when a big cat jumped through the window of her kitchen, alighting at her feet. She suddenly fainted and eight minutes later was dead. The unexpected appearance of the cat, as the animal sprang through the window, brought on a sudden attack of heart failure.

PHILIPPINE BRIDGE FALLS.

LOSS OF LIFE WAS EXAGGERATED ON VAST SCALE

Latest Report Says But 200 Persons Perished in Karatagh Slide.

New Bokhara Turkistan, Nov. 1.—The first reports of the catastrophe at Karatagh were exaggerated. Instead of fifteen thousand persons being killed only about 200 lives were lost. Most of these perished under the landslide which buried four hundred of the six hundred houses of the town. Karatagh is situated in a small natural amphitheatre among lofty hills, the Karatagh mountains hanging over it on one side and a river flowing on the other. At the height of the recent earthquake a great section of the mountain broke away and slid upon the town. Houses there were already falling on all sides from the violence of the earth shocks and many of the luckless inhabitants unable to escape through the narrow streets encumbered by debris, were caught and buried. No building in the town was left standing, the earthquake leveling them all to their foundations. All the survivors were without shelter and a relief expedition with supplies has left New Bokhara for the scene of the disaster.

SIX DIE IN WRECK IN GERMANY.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—A mixed freight and passenger train was derailed today on the Rhoht-Valley road, near Bingen-on-the-Rhine. Six persons were killed and fourteen dangerously injured.

NOT A FORT WAYNE CAR.

The big interurban car destroyed in the fire which wiped out street railway cars at Tipton last night was not one of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley's big limited as indicated in the early dispatches. The car was one of the Indiana Union Traction company's cars which have been in operation between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis. They are identical in type with the "Kendallworth," the "Ivanhoe" and the "Talisman," owned by the Fort Wayne company.

THIEVES STEAL SUPPLY OF COAL DURING THE NIGHT

George J. Schott Victim of Thieves With a Wagon.

When George J. Schott bought the Fleming property on West Washington boulevard and prepared to move into it he thought it would be an excellent idea to have a supply of coal put in in advance and now he regrets it, because the night following the day the coal was delivered a couple of thieves came along with a wagon and took most of it away. There were evidently two men engaged in the job as one passed it out of the cellar to the other, who dumped it in the wagon and the next morning the trail was plain from the few lumps that were jolted out as the wagon was driven away. The matter was not reported to the police.

L. Townsend will deliver an address from the subject, "Lost," and Cartoonist Griswold will give a chalk talk.

TAKES OVER OLD WATER POWER COMPANY HOLDINGS

New Concern is Auxiliary to Local Traction Interests.

The Fort Wayne Power company, which has just been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 with Frank H. Cutsbush, Frederick J. Schmidt and Samuel Morris, Jr., as directors, will take over the holdings of the old Fort Wayne Water Power company, including the feeder canal and property and water rights at Hamilton. These were recently purchased by Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley traction interests from the old company, and the new company, organized as an auxiliary to the traction syndicate, will simply hold the property until the syndicate determines upon its disposition. Chief Engineer Weber, of the traction company, is at work upon plans for a substantial concrete dam to replace the structure near the park which was carried out by the high water a year ago. It is probable that the new dam will be built early in the winter.

JAPAN IS FORCED TO YIELD TO CHINA ON MAELS

Japan's Postal Affairs are Again Entrusted to the Chinese Roads.

Peking, Nov. 1.—Japan today began entrusting the transportation of the Japan-Pekin mails to the care of the Chinese posts, which is an outcome of Chinese coercive action in refusing Japan the use of the Imperial railway for her mail couriers. China's action was induced by Japan's postal aggressiveness, her independent postoffice service in China having been troubled in two years, and also to France's attempted re-establishment of courier post from Yun-Nan, where the Indo-China post has been operated since 1901. It is yet uncertain if France will withdraw her Indo-China post couriers, who have been operating since a fortnight ago. The Chinese are sincerely alarmed at the undeviating, correlated aggressions of Japan and her allies and many Chinese are forming a distinct idea that Japan is China's prime menace. Seventy stations north of Kuan Cheng-Tsou have been added to the Chinese telegraph system, as a result of the Russo-Chinese telegraph convention. Although the dowager empress was reported on October 13th to be ill, the entire court returned from the summer palace to the forbidden city last night for the winter. Grand councilors, Yuan-Shi-Kai and Chang-Chih-Tung, are following the court. About eleven thousand troops recently brought from Pao-Ting-Fu garrisoned the twelve miles interval between the summer palace and Peking. Considerable mystery surrounds the death three weeks ago of the Princess Shun, the empress's sister, on account of the reserve maintained regarding women. As the princess was a favorite of the foreign ladies here, many of the latter desired to console with the court, but the officials were unable to enlighten the legations in regard to the passing away of the princess. The suspension of the court receptions to foreigners the past year and a half is reported as evidence of the accuracy of reports regarding the dowager's ill-health.

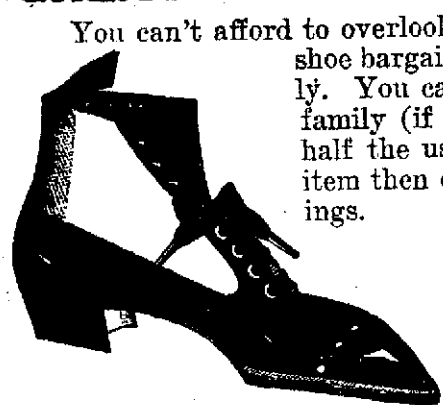

FIND A CONSPIRACY TO STEAL PAPERS IN WALSH CASE

Man and Woman are Under Arrest in Chicago on Suspicion.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Government officials believe that in the arrest of Miss Mita McLean, the stenographer, and Alexander B. Gordon, a printer, they have uncovered a conspiracy to steal the government information regarding the case of John R. Walsh, the former president of the Chicago National bank, now under indictment for alleged misappropriation of the funds of the bank. Both prisoners were arraigned today before United States Commissioner Foot. Miss McLean declared that she did not care for an attorney. John S. Miller, who is attorney for Mr. Walsh, said to Commissioner Foot that Gordon had come to him some time ago with the offer to sell important information, but that he declined the offer. He had no idea, he said, that the Walsh case was involved until he was asked today by the United States district attorney to come into court. Neither Miss McLean nor Gordon was prepared to plead and the case was continued until later in the day.

PERSONAL PROPERTY ON HOLTON AVENUE PUT AWAY UP

Playful Spooks Loft Steps and a Wheelbarrow
—Little Damage.

Personal property on Holton avenue went away up last night when a lot of playful spooks took a heavy set of door steps, a wheelbarrow and a number of other heavy articles and placed them in the light tower at Creighton avenue in the school yard. The things were carried half way up the tall structure and parents in the neighborhood were figuring this morning on how much time, talk and gas it would have required to have had their hopefuls devote as much energy to ward the chopping of the family wood pile as was exhausted in climbing the tower with the heavy stuff that was looted.

So far as the police have been able to ascertain there was not much damage done to property by Halloween revelers. There was much convulsion and the annual search for portables and keys, but so far as the reports at headquarters show there was not much damage.

Joe Hartman was around early looking for a wagon that he left standing at the old Berry street M. E. church site, but it was soon located. There was a telegraph pole placed across the sidewalk at Lewis and Cedar streets and a stray delivery wagon was left on Monroe street, between Washington and Jefferson. Most of the losers were philosophical and set about hunting up their property without bothering the police.

There was a great number of calls at headquarters last night, but all could not be given attention and early in the evening Chief Ankenbruck and Sergeant Pappert made a round of the city in the patrol wagon and surprised a number of gangs of boys bent on depredations, but timely warnings prevented them from carrying out their deviltry. Patrolman Burelle stopped a gang of boys with a wagon at Main and Harrison street after he had fired a blank cartridge to make them stop running and required them to return the wagon to where they had found it.

There was a door step flung into rearsville lake: Henry Schone, of East Washington, boulevard, lost an iron gate, and at 504 East Lewis street an iron gate was removed from a driveway. Doorsteps were placed across the car tracks on Broadway, but a policeman found them in time to prevent any damage. One lad, with a lot of boys, overturned an outhouse in the east end and fell into the vault, but was rescued by his companions. There were windows marked with soap, signs removed and a lot of other Halloween regulation doings. Detective Lenz went out to protect property on Creighton avenue and while he was gone his windows were smeared with soap. Ballist George Strodel hid out under one of two young girls who were annoying him.

HOG IN A WELL 32 DAYS

Without Food and Water, Yet Was Living and Able to Grunt.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 1.—That a hog may fast and thirst for thirty-two days has been unintentionally demonstrated on the farm of the late William H. Props, of Eaton, where a hog has just been rescued from a well where it had been for that length of time. The executor of the Props estate sold the stock on the farm in September. He advertised 100 head of hogs for sale, but on the day of the sale he could only find ninety-nine. He supposed the missing one had been stolen.

Several days ago a hunter passed an abandoned well on the Props farm and, hearing a peculiar noise, investigated and found the long-missing hog. When the animal was taken from the well it was very thin, resembling somewhat an Arkansas razorback, although it had been very fat before it fell in. But it had a good appetite and will soon be ready for market. The bottom of the well was covered with brush and the hog had no way even of reaching the water that was just below it.

CUT THIS OUT AND SAVE IT FOR THE FUTURE

Says Many Persons Here
Can Be Made Happy
Again by Using This.

There is so much rheumatism here now that the following advice by an eminent authority will be highly appreciated by those who suffer.

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative issues of the kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

The Patterson-Fletcher store will give a fine football to each boy that buys a suit, reefer or overcoat in their children's department.

WAS WILLING TO QUALIFY.

An Amusing Incident of Mr. Sothorn's London Engagement.

During the engagement of Mr. E. H. Sothorn in London last spring, the actor received a number of letters requesting him to inaugurate the service of professional "escorts," which had been in vogue during the engagement at the Lyric theater in New York.

The duty of these escorts was to take lonely ladies home after the performance. The news of this innovation preceded Mr. Sothorn's arrival in London, and among the numerous applications for positions in the escort corps, the following perhaps was the most amusing. It was sent by an Indian belonging to a wealthy Bombay family. He wrote:

"I am a member of a tip-top Indian family, well known in London, Paris and New York, and am one of the next heirs. I have good talent for original literary work of an imaginative, idealistic nature. An interesting phonological chart, bears out my views. I am, however, willing to change my career for a more adventurous one, for my present occupation does not satisfy my artistic craving; hence, I apply to you. I will not only undertake to act as an escort, but take charge of your whole organization, as well, and altogether relieve you of all anxiety on that score and make it a great success. I am engaged to a young lady and, if a married man is supposed to be better fitted for escort duties, I am ready to complete that position in a very short time."

SUNDAY LAW ENFORCED.

Brownstown Women Compel Strict Observance of the Statute.

Brownstown, Ind., Nov. 1.—The "lid" was on this place last Sunday so tight that not a cigar nor a stick of candy could be bought, and next Sunday it will be on still tighter, as the city marshal has notified the butcher that meat wagons will not be permitted to run, nor will they be allowed to keep their shops open. The only places heretofore unaffected were livery stables, butcher shops, drug stores, hotels and restaurants. Drug stores are only permitted to sell drugs and hotels and cafes are limited to serving meals. Two weeks ago twelve women appeared before the city council, complaining that the rear doors of saloons were swinging freely on Sunday, and demanding that the laws be enforced and clamping down the lid followed. The people are taking very kindly to the new order of things.

CAME TO ALLEN COUNTY WHEN INDIAN TRAIL PASSED CABIN

William R. Crabbs, Pioneer Citizen, Dies at Roanoke.

Roanoke, Ind., Nov. 1.—William R. Crabbs, a pioneer resident of Allen county, but for the past four years living in Roanoke, died Wednesday afternoon at the age of 91 years, 7 months and 9 days. Mr. Crabbs was born in Ohio, and was married in Springfield April 3, 1845. The same year Mr. and Mrs. Crabbs located on the farm in Lafayette township, Allen county, where he lived for more than fifty years.

At that time there were no roads except the old Fort Wayne-Huntington road, which passed through the farm. The only means of transportation west from Toledo was the Wabash and Erie canal. Big game was plentiful and many of the Miami Indians still lived in this vicinity. An old Indian trail from the Godfrey reservation near Roanoke was near Mr. Crabbs' log cabin and the Indians often stopped at his home.

When the farm he lived on until a few years ago was bought, in 1851, it cost the deceased $350. About three weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Crabbs sold the farm to E. F. Jones, of Markle, for $10,000.

Mr. Crabbs was the thirteenth of a family of twenty-one children, and only one of these, Mrs. Thorpe, of Fort Wayne, survives. His oldest brother was born in 1812, and was a private in the war of 1812. He remembered hearing his father talk about the whisky rebellion during Washington's administration. At this time the family still lived in Pennsylvania.

His first vote was cast for William Henry Harrison in 1840, but he well remembered the campaign of 1824, when Henry Clay, J. Q. Adams and Andrew Jackson were presidential candidates. He voted the whig ticket until the time of the birth of the republican party, and had been a staunch member of that party ever since.

Mrs. Crabbs' maiden name was Martha Black. They were the parents of eight children, six of whom are living. The living are: Mrs. Catter Wyson, of near Roanoke; Mrs. Albert Sites, of Roanoke; Jacob M. and John S., of Allen county; James, of Clay Center, Kan., and Harvey, of Fort Wayne. One daughter, Mrs. Walter Bowman, and one son, Ora, are dead. Fifteen grandchildren are living.

Mr. Crabbs was a carpenter by occupation, and he was actively engaged at his work until he was 70 years old, and at irregular intervals until he was 84. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and had been identified with Roanoke lodge, F. and A. M., since 1859.

Funeral services Saturday afternoon from the residence and later from the Roanoke M. E. church; interment at Glenwood cemetery.

It's a Matter of Pride

with us that no flour in the land shall excel the "Silver Dollar" nor "Hungarian Process" flour. It's a matter of business that these flours once tried means repetition and constant use. The demand for these flours is increasing because our home people are advocates of patronizing home industries and these are home milled flours. At all grocers.

CHOOSE INTELLIGENTLY

In making choice of a bank that shall become the depository of your funds and the medium for disbursing them, study well its elements of strength. Strong safes and automatic locks are incidental necessities, but it is more important that the men who manage the bank shall be strong men free from the taint of speculation and worthy of confidence. Choose a bank that seeks to prosper and makes loans carefully. These are points of merit we claim as a basis for your confidence.

ANOTHER NATURE FAKIR.

Story of Jim Hance and the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

Here is another story of Jim Hance and the Grand Canyon of Arizona: When tourists are thick Jim rides over to the hotels and talks to them. He has marvelous tales to tell. One day he was standing by the top of the Bright Angel trail with a few pieces of meat in his hand.

"What are you going to do with that meat, Mr. Hance?" asked a pert tourist lady from Boston.

"Why, I'm goin' down to feed my pet fish with it."

"Your pet fish? Have you a pet fish? Oh, tell me about it!"

"Well," said Jim, "it was this way: One time some years ago I was fishin' down there in the canyon in the Colorado river. I wasn't havin' much luck, but all of a sudden I seen a commotion in the water and a tolerable sized fish riz up and looked at me. I seen the fish was angry, and as there ain't anythin' much more despit than a mad fish I ducked. I was just in time, for the fish leaped out of the water and straight at me. He'd 'a' speared me sure if it hadn't been for that duck of mine. As it was, he went clean over me and landed in a pool in the hollow of the rocks behind me, where there was a considerable pond of water. He couldn't get out, and he's there yet. Him and me is fast friends now, and I go down twice a week and feed him."

"How long ago was that?"

"It was seventeen year ago."

"The fish must be quite large by this time."

"Oh," said Jim, "not so much! Last time I put the tape on him he was only twenty-seven feet long. He ain't got his full growth yet!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Saw Himself as Others Saw Him.

One Sunday morning some years ago I stepped out into the back yard of my southern home. The "cook's boy," wearing a checked homespun shirt, was playing in the yard. He approached me and said:

"Mister Chollie, I never is had on a white shirt in my life. Can't you gimme one?"

I complied with this request by giving him a white shirt and a very high standing collar. With a grin and show of large white teeth, he left me. That afternoon I saw the boy in the yard wearing his accustomed colored shirt. Responding to my interrogative look, he said:

"I put on dat white shirt and collar, and you know what I look like? I look like a black mule wid his head over a whitewash fence, and I took dat shirt and collar off!"—Judge's Library.

A Question of Distance.

"Do you favor the eight hour movement, Mr. Small?"

"It depends on how far I have to move."—Philadelphia Press.

Against the Rules.

"Did I ever see General Grant?" exclaimed Veteran Kilgore in response to an idle query. "Did I ever—why, child, at Shiloh I was a-layin' in th' tall grass a-shootin' just as fast as I could load an' fire when I heard hoss tracks approachin', an' a voice callin' from th' road:

"Hey, there! Ain't that you, Kilgore?"

"I knowed th' voice instant an' says, 'Yes, Grant; it's me,' an' kep' right on shootin'."

"Come here," he says.

"I riz, reluctant, an' sauntered over to th' road, an' Grant says t' me:

"Kilgore," he says, 'I want ye t' go home. Ye're killin' too many people.'"

—Woman's Home Companion.

Very Suspicious.

"Better send an inspector down to see what's the matter with this man's meter," said the cashier in the gas company's office to the superintendent.

"Oh," began the superintendent, "we throw complaints about meters."

"This is no complaint. He sends a check for the amount of his bill and says it's 'very reasonable.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Not Safe Even There.

Dick—if you are afraid of microbes, why don't you kiss your girl over the phone? You can't catch anything by kissing a girl over the wire.

Tom—Oh, yes, you can. I kissed mine over the phone the other day. The old man grabbed the receiver and I caught the diphtheria.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Janitorial King.

We've prayed for it with earnest prayers; We've pleaded with the man downstairs; We've gone down on our bened knees; We've told him we would surely freeze; We've proved it by our steaming breath; We've said the cold would be our death; We've vowed to bow to his commands; We've hinted Christmas was at hand; We've promised him a mint of tips; We've jilted him with quips and quips; We've used some words we don't repeat; We've hung it all—we want steam heat! But he, the villain, gives a smile And calmly answers, "Wait awhile!"—La Touche Hancock in New York Press.

Ell Taylor, of Fairfax, Va., accosted Amos Rugg, who was pushing a wheelbarrow, and asked him what he thought of the weather. Rugg, who was pushing a wheelbarrow, thought $2 would be a fair price and the offer was taken. Mr. Rugg stopped only once, then to take off his coat, and covered the distance in about 10 minutes.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL

Big Copper Concern the Bone of Contention.

New York, Nov. 1.—A fight for control of the Lake Superior corporation, a $40,000,000 company, built up after the ruinous collapse of the Consolidated Lake Superior company in 1903, is manifested by a busy gathering of stockholders' proxies. The adjourned annual meeting of the board of directors is to be held in Jersey City next Tuesday. Strong Philadelphia interests represented by J. Tatnall Lea and Francis B. Reeves, president of the Girard National bank, of that city, are said to be at work to oust Charles E. Orvis and Francis H. Clague, both of New York, who have been on the board since the reorganization. The effort of the Philadelphia interests to overthrow the New York interests dates from just before the last meeting of the directors. The meeting broke up in disorder. Dissatisfaction is understood to be the reason for the opposition. Several of the plans of the company are in the Sault Ste. Marie region.

TOP OF MOUNT ARARAT.
Landing Place of Ark Not Inaccessible, but Crowded with Superstitions.

An interview with a Chaldean student presents the surprising information that nobody has been on top of Mount Ararat, at least since Noah came down from it. This young man, who has been converted to Christianity and has come to this country to prepare himself for a missionary, puts it in these words:

"No man has ever live who tried to climb to the top of Mount Ararat. It is the unscaled summit of the east. Maybe some day some American will climb to the head."

In reality, Mount Ararat, which rises to a height of nearly 17,000 feet, is difficult to ascend, and it was not until 1829 that the summit was reached by Professor Parrot, a German. Since then it has been ascended about a dozen times. It is not probable, however, that the young Chaldean has any idea of misrepresenting the facts. He simply expresses the views of his countrymen, even those living about the mountain, who still maintain their childish faith that nobody has ever ascended the mountain and nobody can ever do so.

An amusing illustration of this is furnished by our British ambassador, James Bryce, in his book "Transcaspia and Ararat." He visited the mountain and ascended it in 1876. Two days later he visited a monastery on the north side of the mountain and was introduced to the archimandrite by his interpreter with the statement: "This Englishman says he has ascended to the top of Massis"—Massis being the local native name of Mount Ararat. The archimandrite smiled a sweet but Missouri smile and answered: "No, that cannot be. No one has even been there. It is impossible."

In fact, aside from the natural difficulties attending the ascent, it is commonly believed by the people of the vicinity that the mountain is supernaturally guarded. Possibly this is due in part to the Noah's ark legend, for the mountain is often called Noah's mountain, or the mountain of the Ark. Probably it is still more due to the fact that over 1 centuries since the towns on the mountain side were destroyed by an earthquake. The mountain is an extinct volcano and is subject to seismic disturbances at long intervals. Whatever the basis of their faith it seems probable that the people of the vicinity will continue undisturbed in their belief, no matter how many mountain climbers may succeed in making the ascent.—Indianapolis Star.

Prof. Howard A. Kelly, of Johns Hopkins hospital, received $21,000 for twenty-one days' treatment of the wife of a wealthy mine owner. Prof. A. McLane Tiffany, of the same city, was paid $10,000 for performing an operation on a New York patient, and Prof. J. W. Chambers received $5,000 for operating on a deputy warden who had been stabbed by a prisoner. A Chicago physician, Dr. C. T. Parkes, charged $10,000 for one operation.

Perhaps when the police discover why that dynamite bomb was placed on the steps of the Meyer saloon the mystery involving the identity of the man who placed it there will be less difficult to penetrate.

Will some one—Prosecutor Niade or Chief of Police Ankenbruck—please rise and explain why nothing has yet been done to bring about the proper punishment of those guilty of selling beer to the small boys who were found later bestially drunk?

Another financier has discovered that Roosevelt is a dangerous man.
Starts panics, usurps power and is making the government a despotism.
If he sticks to that anti-third term resolution he will probably be accused of trying to run a regency. It's really awful, what we're coming to.

The panic appears to be done with its caving, but the country evidently has been awakened to the im-prudence of keeping up too fast a pace and there is a general slowing down that will be felt somewhat though it does not yet appear that it will actually hurt. Business and finance will be adjusted to a gait more in keeping with endurance and security.

Tennessee towns and cities are permitted under a new law to reincorporate with ordinances providing for abolishing the liquor traffic.

Knoxville has just put one hundred saloons out of business and Bristol, which has been the drink headquarters for people of three states, has closed the doors of twenty-five. Georgia on the south will enter a regime of absolute prohibition the first of the year and in Kentucky local option has made the entire state dry save in four or five counties. Alabama has a recently enacted local option law under which great numbers of towns and some of the larger cities have extirpated the liquor traffic. All this has been accomplished without hysteria or even attracting a great deal of attention in the north. It shows the steady march of a practical temperance sentiment that is spreading rapidly over the country and in no northern state with more rapidity than in the good state of Indiana.
That slogan of the State Anti-Saloon league and of the Women's Christian Temperance union that Indiana will be a dry state by 1912 is no idle shout. The indications point precisely to that achievement. It may take more than five years to bring about prohibition in the state or even a general local option law, but at the present progress of temperance sentiment it will not require a much longer period to witness the destruction of the retail liquor traffic in Indiana.

Next Tuesday will determine whether or not an appeal to mere partisan spirit can compass the downfall of a man who has conspicuously
"made good." It is up to the people of Cleveland to give him the approval that is the true desert of his good works. To beat Mayor Johnson the republicans have drafted not only the most popular man of their party who is eligible to the mayoralty but one of the ablest men of the national house of representatives. Mr. Burton does not want to be mayor of Cleveland, and there is no special reason why the people of Cleveland should wish him to be. The Cleveland fight is just now the fulminating part of the general republican campaign in Ohio. The Cleveland mayorally battle is a part of the Taft movement and it is the wedge by which Congressman Burton hopes to open the way to Mr. Foraker's seat in the United States senate. But to get back to Tom L. Johnson. He has made so good that to defeat him would be the sort of ingratitude of which republicans are proverbially guilty. Cleveland has been made one of the best, if not altogether the best, governed cities in America. There is no respect in which Burton could improve upon Johnson and there are many ways in which he would be the worse for Cleveland. A fierce battle is raging and the republicans hope by getting their full vote to the polls to sweep away the Johnson majorities of former years. It will be a pity if they do it. The indications do not point to any such strange consummation of blunt political purposes.

SUFFRAGE IN ICELAND.

The Icelandic Althing will probably take an important step in the direction of woman suffrage at its next session. The minister of the crown is to propose a bill granting the franchise to women.
Already many concessions have been made that deserve to be noticed as indications of the extent to which the spirit of this reform has governed legislation in the colony. In 1882 all widows and unmarried women of 25, who supported families, or lived by their own earnings, were given the right to vote in parish, town and parochial councils. In 1902 the Althing passed a bill which gave such women the right of eligibility to all offices for which they could vote. The municipal suffrage for 25 years, and the right to hold municipal office for five years.

BIG GLACIERS SHRINK.

Remarkable shrinkages have been going on among the Swiss glaciers, especially in the last two or three years. The great Rhone glacier, one of the sights of Switzerland—at least it used to be—has lost in the last two years no less than 88,250 square feet and others have been shortened by anywhere from twenty feet to forty feet. Among sixty-three instances fifty-three regressions were discovered, one glacier remained stationary and nine had slightly increased. The conspicuous gain was made by the Eiger glacier, which lengthened itself 114 feet last year, but observers say that these increases are not permanent.—

WHOLESALE TO JOIN DECATUR DEALERS AT BANQUET

Fort Wayne Jobbers Will Be Guests of Trolley Company.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 1.—On Saturday evening of this week the Fort Wayne and Springfield interurban people will at the Murray house, between the hours of six and seven, entertain the retail merchants of this city and the wholesale merchants of Fort Wayne at a banquet.

The object of this banquet is to stir up a more friendly relationship than now exists and to encourage business relations between these two cities.
The managers of the interurban line are confident that the local merchants can purchase their goods at Fort Wayne as cheap as any other place in the country and will at this banquet endeavor to show to the merchants of both these cities the advisability of working together.

A representative of every business firm in Decatur has been extended invitation as well as the representative of every wholesale house in Fort Wayne, and the local promoters are expecting something like seventy-five guests.

The move is one of the best the interurban people could have made, as it means a closer relationship among the business men of both cities and in the end will bring much business to their line. A program of short speeches has been arranged by President Fiedlerjohn and he fully expects to make every one who attends feel perfectly at home and one and all will be accorded a rousing welcome.

INDIANA T. P. A. STILL LEADS.

Continue to Gain in Membership—
One Cent Letter Postage Desired.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 1.—The latest report from national headquarters of the T. P. A. at St. Louis, shows Indiana still maintaining the lead over Missouri, which was gained in the contest for the prize for the largest increase in membership of state divisions. Indiana had 6,136, which was sixty-two more than Missouri. The total for the United States was 36,490. The organization will ask congress to reduce letter postage to 1 cent, in the hope that the proposed parcel post law will be defeated. The national board of directors has set the week of June 22 for the national convention in Milwaukee next year.

STOLE TO WIN HER FAVOR.

Boy's Confession of Theft of Watch Touches Judge's Heart.
Muncie, Ind., Nov. 1.—When Leslie Taylor, twenty years old, sobbed out his confession in the circuit court that he stole a gold watch from a jeweler at Eaton so that he might make a present to his sweetheart, a high school girl, Judge Joseph Leffler grew sympathetic, and after sentencing the young man, as compelled by law, he released him on suspended sentence and gave him a chance to make a reputable citizen out of himself. The young man's desire to gain the young girl's favor induced him to commit the theft.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—Heirs of George Washington are seeking to recover a large sum from the government on account of lands granted to him along the Ohio river which subsequently were opened invidiously by congress to settlers. An administrator of the undistributed assets of the estate was appointed yesterday by the circuit court of Fairfax county, Virginia, on a petition

SENATORS SEEK POSTMASTER.

Looking for a Successor to Nashville's Postmaster, Who Has Resigned.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—Senators Beveridge and Hendon have been called upon to name a postmaster for Nashville, the capital of Brown county,
Mo. The present postmaster, Robert Poling, is the only man in Indiana, as far as the department knows, who is trying to run away from a postoffice. The department will not let him make his
"get away" unless his bondsmen designate some one to act in his place until Senators Beveridge and Hendon dispose of this weighty bit of patronage.

South Freeport, Me., Nov. 1.—The yacht "Kingdom" with sixty-seven of the "Holy Ghost and Us" colony sailed early yesterday for the holy land.

Among the number was Charles E. Holland, who is known as "Moses" and who

Pittsburg Doctors Plan Operations to Help Children, Not Bright.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—Surgeons in Pittsburg have planned to use the knife in an effort to brighten the minds of the backward pupils in the public schools.
At a conference yesterday the board of the bureau of health and members of the Civic club it was decided to collect evidence for presentation to the council to convince it of the advisability of establishing a bureau of inspection which will order operations on pupils when these are thought advisable.

Helsinki, Nov. 1.—The Finnish par-result. A cablegram was sent to the W.

Danderine

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR AND WE CAN PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.
That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It en-livenes, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter:

January 3, 1905.
Dear Doctor Knowlton:—
You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.
I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bro's. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it.
Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.
Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

Danderine makes the scalp healthy and fertile and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp fertilizer and therefore the greatest hair-producing remedy the world has ever known.
It is a natural food and a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a 25c bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes.
25 cents, 50 cents and $1. per bottle

FREE. To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

ROOSEVELT AGAIN PUT ON GRILL OF HIGH FINANCE

Eastern Money Magnate Says President is a Peril — Blamed for Panic.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 1.—John W. Alling, president of the Security Fire Insurance company of this city, president of the New Haven County Bar association, a director in several New Haven banks, and one of the foremost lawyers of Connecticut, made an attack on President Roosevelt last night at the annual banquet of the New Haven Economics club, which has among its members all the leading business men of New Haven and of which Mr. Alling is president.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, appeared at the banquet in his now familiar role of defending the president.

Mr. Alling placed responsibility for the recent financial disturbance in New York and elsewhere fairly upon President Roosevelt's shoulders.

Havoc Wrought by "My Policy."

"President Roosevelt is alone responsible for raising the railroad rate question," said Mr. Alling. "It was not a plan in the republican platform, in the senate it did not command a majority, of the republicans in the committee. A minority of the republicans and democrats combined and this Rooseveltian measure was intrusted to the democratic senator, Tillman. The overwhelming popularity of President Roosevelt jammed it through."

"Now, what has been the result? From the instant it appeared likely that the power to fix rates was to be taken from the railroad and put into the hands of commissioners, everyone of whom could be removed at once by Mr. Roosevelt, the value of railroad properties began to decline and their credit to disappear. The havoc wrought by this Rooseveltian measure against the railroad capital runs up into the billions of dollars; it affects hundreds of thousands of individuals and every savings bank."

Roosevelt Rule-Like Monarchy.

"This so-called statesman, President Roosevelt, not content with the havoc already wrought is determined that congress shall still further regulate, control and retain railroads. President Roosevelt has disclaimed all party policy. In his grand, lofty way it has always been 'my policy.' The constitution has not stood in his way. This is not the statesmanship of a constitutional president. It is a presidential monarchy."

"President Roosevelt has assumed that he is the United States government. It is true he is immensely popular with the masses. So were the leaders of the old crusaders against the unspeakable Turk. They did not do much harm to the Turk, but they brought untold misery on their blind followers. Mr. Roosevelt is, essentially like those old crusade leaders, powerful, arrogant, conceited, with a halo of heavenly inspiration, a born leader, bound by no party ties, himself the whole thing; in search of valiant deeds, claiming a supernatural power to defeat the unspeakable Turk, as he thinks, by the whole people."

Deems Him a Dangerous Force.

He is the most dangerous force to constitutional liberty that has ever existed in this country. He has taken the press by the nape of the neck, and to a great extent forced it to do his bidding. Notoriously, President Roosevelt does not respect the independence of the judiciary; in the great New York circuit, two of the three judges of the circuit court of appeals are his appointments. His attorney general, a man after his own heart, was by him appointed to the supreme court of the United States."

There is no accident in those appointments. President Roosevelt does not conceal that his object is to bring about such a judicial and so final a construction of the federal constitution as will give the United States power to regulate, control and restrain all the business wealth of this country."

MAN SAYS HE KILLED A WOMAN SUPPOSED TO BE A SUICIDE

Convicted of Aiding Wife to Die Confesses He Slew Her.

New York, Nov. 1.—After being convicted of manslaughter in "aiding and abetting" his wife to commit suicide, James Wardell has confessed to Judge Foster in general sessions that he had killed her with gas. Then, Wardell said, he fired a bullet into her body to give the impression she had ended her own life.

When Wardell was tried he insisted his wife had committed suicide. They had quarreled, and she went to live with another man. Later, he said, they met at the house where the tragedy occurred, and, after talking it over, decided to die together.

"We tried gas," he said, "but it was slow." Then at my wife's request I pawned my watch and bought a revolver. She was to shoot me first and then end her own life. I shut my eyes, waiting for the shot, but when I heard it I felt no pain. I looked around and saw that my wife had killed herself."

Wardell's testimony was contradicted by Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon. He said at the trial that the woman died of gas asphyxiation, and that she was dead when the bullet was fired into her brain.

Counsel Tells of the Crime.

When Judge Foster yesterday asked if Wardell had anything to say to his counsel, Carl Fisher Hanson, moved forward and said: "Wardell has asked me to convey to this court that it was he who killed his wife. He claims he was not responsible, as his wife's misdoings had preyed upon his mind."

"He had left her, but returned for the purpose of reforming her. She promised to go back to him and he hired a little flat, only to be told that she was tired of it all, and asked if he would die with her."

Wardell cannot account for his actions on the day of that conversation. When he came home his wife was sleeping. He took the tube from the gas stove, placed it in his wife's mouth, and turned on the gas. When she was dead he fired the bullet into her brain."

"You have heard what your counsel has said," said the judge to Wardell. "Is it true?"

"It is," answered the prisoner, firmly.

Mental Test is Suggested. Assistant District Attorney Train, who prosecuted the case, suggested that the defendant be examined as to his sanity.

Wardell was sworn, but Hanson advised him to answer no questions.

"I wish to abide by my counsel's advice," said Wardell, "but if you are going to try me for murder, do so. That's what I want. I want to die. I want to get away from it all."

Unable to decide just what to do, Judge Foster put the case over. Wardell had been gloomy when brought into the court, but was cheerful as he was taken back to the Tombs.

"OPEN SUNDAY" BILL IS KILLED.

Measure Urged by United Societies is Given Death Blow in Senate.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 1.—The "open Sunday" bill urged by the United Societies of Chicago was killed in the senate yesterday under the president's gavel. A number of members of the societies were present when the bill died.

Senator Etteson introduced a bill providing for the electrification of all the railroads in the city of Chicago within three years.

They senate passed bills giving boards of education in cities the same power to acquire school sites as is now given in country districts, and giving towns of 1,500 inhabitants authority to construct and maintain public libraries.

DEFENDS HONOR WITH POKER.

Woman Repulses Intruder Who Attacks Her While Alone.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 1.—Attacked by a strange man who entered her home yesterday, Mrs. J. W. Brooks defended her honor with an iron poker. Although she weighs less than a hundred pounds, she threw off the stranger's grip at her throat and laid open his head with one blow of the poker. The stranger ran. Detectives are searching for him.

Mrs. Brooks was alone in her home at the time and the stranger, who gained entrance to the house by presumably coming to look for a room for rent, took advantage of her apparent helplessness.

BROTHER SAYS CEREMONY.

Officials at Marriage of the Rev. D. A. McClung to Bloomington Bride.

Dickson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. B. McClung, brother of the groom, assisted by Dr. T. H. Hanna, pastor of the bride's church.

The bride is a graduate of Indiana university, class of '03.

The couple left last night for a trip through the east and will be at home after Nov. 20 at Leipsic.

HOODLUMS AT MONROEVILLE.

[Special to The Sentinel.] Monroeville, Ind., Nov. 1, 1907.

Hoodlums, bent on mischief proper at this point, stationed themselves last evening a few feet west of the street car station and as the car was leaving this point at 5 o'clock, showed the restful with rotten eggs and came not so rotten. Conductor Aldine and Motorman Frank Miller were put entirely out of commission and were compelled to stop the car and clean themselves up before they could look after the safety of their passengers.

MASSACHUSETTS THROWS VOTING MACHINES FROM STATE

Supreme Tribunal Says It is Not Written Ballot and Violates Law.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 1.—A voting machine cannot be used at an election for state representatives in the legislature for the reason that the constitution provides that they shall be chosen by written vote.

That is the reason for the decision of the full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court yesterday in ordering a writ of mandamus to issue on the petition of Representative Malcom E. Nichols of ward ten against the election commissioners directing them not to use the voting machine in the election Tuesday in ward ten, as the statute under which its use is authorized is unconstitutional. In its opinion the full court says:

"The constitutional question thus raised was considered and a different answer given to questions submitted by the house of representatives, which appear in the opinions of the justices, 178 Massachusetts. This question may be answered affirmatively or negatively according to the degree of strictness with which we interpret the language of the constitution. If a choice by written vote is to be limited as to details to the particular method or methods which the framers of the constitution had in mind more than 100 years ago it is plain that the use of these machines is not permissible."

In Broad Sense Machine is All Right.

"If we look at the object of the constitutional requirement there is ground for an argument that it may be accomplished by the use of this machine and that, in a broad and liberal application of the provisions of the constitution to the present conditions and possible methods of voting, the use of this machine at an election should be deemed a choice by written vote. It may be argued that the making of a material record of his act by each voter and thereby securing for it a greater security and permanence than would result from a show of hands or a declaration of viva voce is accomplished by the use of the machine as well as by a paper vote written by the hand of the voter and deposited in a box."

"The secrecy of the ballot is even more effectively secured by the machine than by the method practiced 100 years ago. It might be contended that when the voter has pressed down the key before the name of each of his candidates he has before him his vote upon which his choice is designated, and that his movement of the lever, which makes the record upon the dials below, does not differ in effect from the movement of his hand in throwing a piece of paper into a box, and that the numerical adjustments and uncertainty that intervene between his act and the entry of the result by the election officers are no greater in the one case than in the other."

Not According to Constitution. "Some of the justices, including the writer of this opinion, would prefer to decide that this method of voting is within the meaning of the constitutional provisions. But the method is entirely unlike the writing of a name of a choice of candidates upon a piece of paper and the deposit of the paper in a box, to be afterward taken out and counted. In the use of the machine the voter must trust everything to the perfection of the mechanism."

He cannot see whether it is working properly or not. This chance of error, whether greater or less than the chance that a ballot deposited in a box will not be properly counted, is different from it. It was not within the knowledge or contemplation of the framers of the constitution."

SHERIFF BACKS DOWN.

Gives Up to Federal Laws in Bankruptcy Case.

Something more nearly like order is coming out of the chaos in the affairs of Harry Alexander, a merchant at Montpelier who recently filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court in Fort Wayne. Almost at the same time Alexander's petition turned his property over to the governmental jurisdiction, his Montpelier creditors got after the stuff under the state law and the sheriff of Blackfoot county was about to seize the stock upon an execution. Federal court officials in Fort Wayne have been notified that the sheriff has determined to stand aside and permit the federal bankruptcy court to take care of Alexander's affairs. There are a number of Fort Wayne creditors.

SOCIETY

Miss Nellie Lawson gave a theater party at the vaudeville matinee today in honor of Miss Woolsey. Other guests who enjoyed Miss Lawson's entertainment were Mrs. C. C. Logg, Mrs. A. O. Waterman, Mrs. H. L. Boners, Mrs. John Capron, Mrs. C. S. Bash, Jr., Misses Clara Poole, May Fitzpatrick, Lora and Evelyn Walter, Margaret Vesey, Jeannette and Maud Muhler, Ethel Cox, Blanche Bilderback, Grace Davis, Jessamine Bailey, Florence Griebel and Mrs. William Fielder, of Port Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Jhon T. Dougal.

A beautiful party of yesterday afternoon was enjoyed by the guests of Mrs. Ernest Gerke and Mrs. Edward Scheuman at the home of Mrs. Gerke, on West DeWald street. Although card playing was the principal pastime of the hour, the prettiness of the rooms was distracting from close attention to the game and later when an elaborate supper was served, the guests discovered unsuspected appetites. The rooms were trimmed upstairs and down with autumn foliage, which included branches of snow-drops and matrimony vine with their lovely contrasting colors and vases of white and yellow chrysanthemums. The archways between rooms were lighted with small incandescent lights of different colors and a pumpkin filled with flowers occupied a prominent place in the diningroom. The hostesses were assisted at supper by Mrs. August Becker, Mrs. Henry Gerke and Miss Flora Homeyer. The guests were Mesdames Charles Greenick, Oliver Jones, Charles Tager, Tom Snook, Charles Pape, Robert Mueller, Edward Hobrock, William Sherbondy, John Wolfmum, Emma Gerke, Amos Richie, Charles Meek, William Backner, Will and Herbert Grosvenor, Charles Durnell, Bert Malnes and B. L. DeHaven, and Misses Gertrude Benke, Clara Stoner, Lydia Triler, Clara Scheuman, Pauline Schater, Flora Wenninghoff, Emma Scheuman and Flora Homeyer.

A double birthday celebration of last evening was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Quicksell. Mrs. Quicksell and Mrs. John Heller being the ones subject to congratulations. A dinner was the special feature and the decorations were in keeping with the season and the night. A hollowed pumpkin held white chrysanthemums in the center of the table and yellow festoons of crepe paper and yellow candles added to the pretty effect. Cards were played after the dinner. The guests were Messrs. and Mesdames John Heller, A. L. Hadley, A. James C. Miller, J. L. Patterson, George Treman, Will Eckert and Mrs. Gus Schlicher, of Mattoon, Ill.

Miss Ellen Spencer has returned from a visit of several months in New York.

Miss Evelyn Meyer will entertain this evening in honor of Jerome Blum, of Washington.

Miss Virginia Carnahan will entertain tomorrow afternoon in honor of Miss Katherine Walton.

Miss Martha Donney has returned to Pittsburgh after a visit of six weeks with her sister, Mrs. E. Stoneburner, of Walnut avenue.

The Laurel club ladies had a pleasant meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. W. Riess, on Lake avenue. Mrs. Eugene Williams was a guest for the afternoon.

Miss Edna Meyers, of Fox avenue, entertained a few young friends last evening. Miss Edna was dressed in a fancy costume and dancing was a part of the amusement.

Miss Lucile McCurdy was one of last evening's hostesses for a merry company who had all the fun they could crowd into the time. The guests were Katherine Cook, Margaret Raeder, Martha Emmons, Helen Knouse, Julia Kelsey, Bertha Tower, Mary Beall, James Barrett, Robert and Frederick Thleme, William Wallace Evans, Edward France, Ewart Emmons, Trafford Wilson.

The W. R. club was pleasantly entertained by Mrs. H. Lebig yesterday afternoon at progressive naids. Prize winners were Mrs. F. Bott and Mrs. Brunsell. The decorations at supper were chrysanthemums.

Miss Cornelia Foellinger, of West Jefferson street, entertained a number of friends at a marshmallow bake and other games. The merry time was enjoyed by Misses Clara Bendure, Carrie Weller, Mabel Cooper, Susie Coppock, Alice Fairhead, Reba Jackson, Marguerite Langford, Viola Warner and Fred Knapp, Nat Bendure, Frank Becker, Arthur Rose, Guy Laurents, Omar Kenyon, Harry and Will Lowe.

A little party on the south side was Miss Margaret Runyan's at her home, 6238 Hoagland avenue. Miss Margaret was dressed as an Indian maid and she not only gave her friends a hearty welcome, but gave them a plenty to do in disposing of refreshments and playing games. There were present Martha Moser, Katherine Williamson, Mildred Bowser, Helen Young, Marjorie Kilgore, Charles and Ralph Dunkelberg, Robert Polhamus and Harold Lines.

Rosalie and Alfred Well, of West Wayne street, had a party of little friends who spent a happy time with various games after a supper at 5 o'clock. A special part of the decoration was a pumpkin lady instead of a face. Miss Pumpkin had a head and face like her brother Jack, but being a lady she wore a yellow dress and she grinned at everyone in the same way. The children at this party were Dorothy Harris, Katherine Lehman, Beatrice Kann, Helen Freiburger, Hillis Drayer, Eleanor Wilson, Jack Frank and Elmer Well.

No party of last night exceeded the merriment and good time of the guests who gathered at the home of Miss Ida Rush, of West Wayne street. A marshmallow bake was one part of the fun. The guests were Misses Fayna Bradshaw, Beth Porter, Mildred Saylor, Marguerite Foe, Margery Pickard, Nudge Mace, Katharine King, Virginia Harper, Clara Bash, Helen Caldwell, Frances Wiley, Dorothy White, Virginia Oils, Ellen Doyle, Olive Gannitt, and Marshall Worden, Charles Worden, Marshall McKay, Elliott Pollens, Onslow Orr, Edward McCaskey, Richard Bohn, Henry Sell, Alfred Gross, Alfred Foellinger, George Wiley, Joe Perrine, Fred Hoham, Dudley McChure.

Two young girl hostesses for a frolic at the home of Mrs. W. W. Shryock last evening were Miss Irene Waters and Miss Anne Shryock. It was strictly the right kind of a party with a Jack-o'-lantern bidding you welcome at the window when you rang the doorbell. In the house there was the real old-fashioned supper—doughnuts, pumpkin pie, apples and cider with popcorn and nuts between times. Very pretty decorated place cards, the work of Miss Pauline Doebler, made dainty souvenirs of this party for the guests.

—Jean Hoseny, Adele Frankel, Thekla Krause, Maribel Olds, Ruth Israel, Gertrude and Josephine Fleming, Florence Fisherbach, Edna Klahn, Margaret Fisher, Helen Senary, Helen Medsker, Thyrta Ruhland, Florence Fleming, Nellie Whit, Esther Anderson, Christine Shryock.

One of the pretty parties of yesterday was the entertainment of members of the Wednesday pedro club by Mrs. George DeWald, Jr., at her home on East DeWald street. The decorations of the rooms were yellow and white chrysanthemums, Jack-o'-lanterns, corn husks and a bitterness. The diningroom where supper was served at 6 o'clock was lighted by many white candles, some of which were hidden in yellow lanterns and suspended from the chandelier. William Shuler and daughter, Sadie, of Lyons, Kan., are visiting at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. John Shuler and Mr. and Mrs. William Roegeer.

Mrs. Charles S. Bash, Jr., gave a pretty appointed luncheon for eight guests yesterday in honor of Mrs. Charles Remmert, an October bride. The table and dining-room decorations were red hearts, red hells, Richmond roses and small silver slippers filled with bonbons.

Miss Jeannette Branner entertained a few girls last evening in honor of Miss Edith Borgman. A shower of spoons was presented to the bride-elect of this month. The decorations were pretty in colors of yellow and green.

The Autumn Leaf Pedro club was entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Gelschoffer at her home on Griswold avenue. The hostess and Mrs. Roegeer, Mrs. Willencox and Mrs. John Shuler were the prizes. Mrs. William Vincent will be the next hostess.

A number of ladies perpetrated a surprise on Mrs. Brown, who lives on the Lima road, yesterday afternoon, and enjoyed pedro and a supper. Those who took part were Mesdames Eckert, Orville, Corina, Kahish, Bender, Rehm, Frech, Kronenmiller, Elkey, Brown and Motz.

A number of South side young girls took an imaginary trip around the world and otherwise enjoyed themselves last evening by going from home to home of the members. The fun began at the home of Miss Henrietta Levenberger and continued at homes of the following: Misses Edna Gordon, Bernice Wynant, Margory Bittenger, Matilda Boyce, Armonde Breen, Frances McGuire, Marian Holmes, Esther Leonard, Lucile Miller, Irma Rice.

The B. S. C. girls were among the fun makers on Wednesday evening. They gave a progressive supper. The hostesses were Miss Grace Parisot, who was assisted by Miss Hilda Larimore and Miss Loretta Beverforden. The next stop was at the home of Miss Ethel McArdie, who was assisted by Miss Bonnie Druhot, and next at Miss Margaret Travis's home, where Miss Hazel Fink assisted. The last stopping place was at the Randall cafe, where Miss Anna Sullivan and Miss Helen Rohlmann were hostesses. Other guests were Messrs. Walter Siebert, Paul Lauer, Donald Large, Roland Larimore, Wayne Monahan, Stephen Burns, Dick Oakes, Will Harber, Paul Harrod and John Heiny.

The fun was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. George VanArman, Mrs. James Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Keplinger, Misses Edith Coverdale, Lillian Ortman, Gertrude Williams, Leora Kanaga, Clara Poole, Martha Neff and Messrs. One of the several pleasant parties that were given an evening ahead of Halloween night was Miss Tillie Wellman's at her home on Broadway. The guests were members of the Bonhomie club. Miss Wellman entertained her friends in the attic, which was appropriately decorated. Maple leaves formed a pretty part of the decoration and the rooms were lighted with lanterns. Progressive games were played. The prize winners were Miss Minnie Puls and Miss Dorothy Puls, W. Broges and H. Zimmerman. The guests had their fortunes told among other pleasures of the evening. Those present were Misses Mary Soren, Lena Kiel, Lillian Johnson, Anna Puls, and Messrs. N. Biddle, W. Zimmerman, W. Broges, C. Huff, W. Dockermann, G. Puls and E. Huff.

Mrs. J. Frank Mommer and son, Howard, have just returned from Colorado, where they spent two months with Mrs. Anthony Bott.

A fine time was enjoyed by the guests of Miss Olga and Miss Alice Rice. The children met at the Majestic theater at 6 o'clock sharp and were driven in a big wagon to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Rice. The house was bright and gay with decorations and after a fine supper the children romped to their hearts' content. Pretty favors of quaint Halloween figures and boxes of candy were given each guest. At the close of the romp at the house the children were driven back to the theater where those who wanted to witnessed the rest of the play before they went home. The guests at this party were Violet Ray, Helen and Thelma Reul, Velma Dietrich, Dorothy Switon, Mary Helen Williams, Gladys Glenn, Josephine King, Mary Evans, Helen Magee, Agnes Loeffler, Ralph Rush, Norton Williams, Rodney Breitenstein, George Jackson, Lee Jackson, Morton

Halloween Parties.

To go into detail about each Halloween frolic which the boys and girls enjoyed would be to repeat many things, for the games and much of the decoration planned at each home bore striking similarity. The night before All Saints' day is not one in which a hostess can use much originality in planning entertainment for its traditions are old and to have a Halloween party without pumpkins, apples and nuts for part of the refreshments or Jack-o'-lanterns and cornstalks for part of the decorations would be like celebrating the Fourth without firecrackers. The children who participated in a house party with games of various kinds had as good a time as the boys and girls who yomped out of doors throwing corn, beans and confetti about. Here is a partial list of the house parties: Miss Barbara Cousar, of 2823 South Hanna street entertained a few friends last evening at a Halloween party.

Miss Edith Webber entertained young people last evening at sports of the day and red letters, followed by a supper. The rooms were prettily decorated. Prizes in the game were won by Beulah Kramer, Edith Steger, Paul Krudop and James Beaton. Other guests were Misses Grace Parisot, Bertha DeTurk, Dorothy Levenberger, Nora Kavataugh, Kate Schienger, Grace DeTurk, and Miss Clara Wagner and Miss Beulah Kramer, of Sandusky, O. The young men were James Ecaton, Russell Bowser, Norbert Cook, Will Harber, Howard McDarby, Ed Schrage, Albert Steger, Henry Roescher, Clarence Lump.

A pretty party of Halloween celebration was Miss Rose Martin's at her home, 428 Old Fort place. The guests added to the fun by wearing old-time costumes. The decorations were in yellow and black. A gypsy camp with fortune telling was one particular thing that added to the fun. A flower contest was solved by Miss Rose Thain, Miss Rose Vogelweide and a picture contest by Miss Edith Albright and Miss Carrie Vassar. Other guests were Messrs. Maud Laughlin, Anita Bontrager, Pearl Fanger, Nellie Palmer, Ada Drebbilbiss, Lulu Miller, Marcella App, Agnes Arantz, Hazel Daugherty, May Rademacher, Blanche Hart, Josephine Herber, Mrs. H. W. Foss and Mrs. H. Sommer.

One of the prettiest of parties of last evening took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aiken, of Lake avenue. Miss Gertrude Zentner and Stephen Aiken were host and hostess. The decorations were in keeping with the occasion. Prizes in games were won by Miss Grace Hines and Eliza Redding, Miss Pearl Shaffer and William Jefferies. Miss Ida Haskell told fortunes. Those in attendance at this party were Misses Marie Roge, Pearl Shaffer, Grace Thain, Stella Stein, Edith Schroeder, Dorothy Bourne, Hattie Rouser, Elva Lowery, Julia McNeary, Margaret Schneider, Mary Smith, Grace Banks, Garnet Frye, Grace Hines, Ida Haskell, Maud Haskell, Mrs. William Jefferies, and Messrs. DREW A VIVID PICTURE OF LIQUOR EVIL HORRORS

Father MacCorry in Powerful Arraignment of Intemperance.

Rarely has a more powerful plea for temperance, or a more intensely vivid word picture of the horrors of the liquor evil been presented to a Fort Wayne audience than in the sermon of Rev. Father MacCorry at the Cathedral, at the men's mission service last evening. Addressing a large and attentive audience, the gifted Paulist with intense fervor, inspired of deep conviction, arraigned the traffic as wholly debasing and held up before his hearers the dangers that beset the drinker, declaring, too, that the Cathedral church stood squarely and unmistakably for temperance.

Taking for his text, "The same night Baltassar, the Chaldean king was slain" (Dan. v. Chap. xxx.) He said in part:

"It was night on the banks of the Tigris, there was a royal feast at the palace of the king. Upholstered chariots were arriving at the palace gates. Inside there were chamberlains and cup-bearers to receive the guests. The rustle of silks mingled with the carol of the music and jeweled blazes like stars beneath the lights. The words 'Long Live the King' were upon every lip. Trumpets blared, cymbals clashed, tankards rattled."

Here the speaker proceeded to depict the feast of Baltassar, then the death of the Babylonian monarch and his guests, comparing his banquet chamber to the banquet hall of alcohol, where the drunkard and the debauchee, like the king of the Chaldeans, shall be slain.

Which Side Do You Take?

"If you would ask me," said the speaker, "where I stand upon this question of intemperance I would ask you to just step up to the great white throne of God and ask Him what side He takes and put me down upon that. Or go out there to the graveyard and creeping down among the dead, ask them what side they take and put me down upon that. Or go out to the white-faced women of all our land, whose hearts are broken, whose homes are wrecked, whose eyes are dimmed from crying over the besotted carcasses of husbands and fathers and brothers and friends, ask them what side they take and put me down upon that. For my side is upon their side forever and ever, Amen."

"I think if God would speak to us today, He would thunder 'temperance.' If the lost souls could talk to us, the echo of their cry would be 'temperance.' If all the white-faced women of this world could speak to us today they would cry 'temperance,' 'temperance,' while God is God. "Mind you I do not say that total abstinence is the only virtue, that drunkenness is the only vice. I have no quarrel with the men as such, with whisky-makers, with whisky-buyers, with whisky-sellers with whisky-drinkers. We love the sinner, we despise his sin. For the man who is grappled in the coils of intemperance we have pity; likewise for those who have made him their victim, we pity and pray for them too. I go further and say that I do not believe that it is essential for a man to be a total abstainer in order to be a good Christian. But against the crime of intemperance, for that is the naked issue at the last, I do make war and will make war, while God gives me breath. May the omnipotent God consume the withering plague, with the anathema of His everlasting curse."

A National Calamity. "The crime of drunkenness," continued the speaker, "is now a national calamity. Its mortal pallor has fallen upon every corner of our land. There is not an American river that is not brackish with its tears. There is not an American lake into which its suicides have not plunged. Its mortal pallor has fallen on the farms of New England, on the cotton glens of the south, on the orange slopes of the Pacific, on the farm lands of the middle west. Intemperance has done more to fill our penitentiaries, our institutions for the insane, our orphan asylums and graveyards than perhaps all other evils combined. It has sunk a thousand ships on the banks of New Foundland, it has plunged a thousand trains down the embankment as it sat with its finger on the lever. It has ruined more senators than sat last year in our national councils. It has ruined more lords than sit today in the house of peers. Its cup is a human skull. The tapestries of its mansion are becrimsoned with the blood of its victims. Its music is the wail of the walt in the midnight streets. It has wrung more agonies, it has broken more hearts, it has wrecked more homes, it has damned more souls than all the other emissaries of satan combined."

Time for Drastic Action.

"I claim the crime of drunkenness is a national calamity. I prove it. Government statistics during last year show that three hundred and eighty million more dollars were spent in the purchase of intoxicants than were spent for food, cotton, wool and leather supplies. This means that it cost millions more to help to make them live. Another statistic is this: If you could gather up into battle array the inveterate drunkards of this country alone, five men abreast, they would cover an area of one hundred and sixty miles, and if one man's voice was strong enough to give the order, forward, march! I think the earth would tremble beneath their tramping feet and the gates of hell would rattle on their hinges. Is it not then time that something great, something grand, something desperate must be done? Our public institutions and the crime of drunkenness are fast coming to a death grapple."

It was then demonstrated that statistics prove that almost all the crime and much of the poverty we are cal-

ed upon to meet is the ultimate result of intemperance. He cited the deplorable conditions existing in New York, Chicago, Kansas City and elsewhere, pointing out those places given over to the sale of intoxicating drinks as "the plague-spots on our civilization"—as the places where men whet their courage for arson and murder, debauchery, adultery and theft. "In every city of this union, your city included," said the speaker, "it is a crime to sell liquor on Sunday. Where is the city that keeps that law? Where is your mayor, your city councilmen, your police department? The politics of this country have made the liquor laws an infinitesimal farce in the face of the Lord God Almighty."

Intemperance in the Home.

"The pallor of intemperance has also fallen upon our homes. O, the cries of the white-faced, despairing women of our land that surge up to the great white throne tonight! How long, O Lord, how long! It is not so much the blow on the head, but the blow on the heart that kills them. The drink fiend has stood on the threshold of every drunkard's home and shrieked its dread anathema: 'I curse the father into a madman, the boys into debauchery, the girls into shame.'"

Father MacCorry told of a number of instances that came under his personal observation of poverty, degradation and death resulting from drunkenness and his vivid descriptions wrought upon his audience intensely. He pointed out his reason for being so terribly in earnest regarding the crime of intemperance and gave a most pathetic reminiscence of a friend whom he had loved as a brother, "but who sleeps tonight," he said, "in the chill of a drunkard's grave."

The Drunkard's Doom.

With characteristic power and earnestness the speaker dwelt upon the terrible death of the drunkard. "Don't take my word," he said, "Take the testimony of others. Read Sheridan and Lamb. De Quincey, Marshall and Edgar Allen Poe. As one of these noted writers exclaimed, 'Man say there is no hell, but I know there is, for tell them for me that I am fit to buy.'"

"The worst feature of the drink evil is, that when a man becomes fairly grappled in its coils, it seems that man or devil never stop him. He may see that his life is making a shipwreck of his home, that he is breaking his wife's heart, that he is sending his boys out into the world with the reputation of a drunken parent to live down, his girls with the stigma of a disreputable parent upon their brow. He may try and resolve, but the fever is in his blood and the madness is in his brain and he will not stop until

Christ calls Halt! and then he finds his soul before the judgment seat of God.

Made Personal Appeal.

"If there is a man listening to me now, who through moderate drink, has started on the road to intemperance, I single him out and appeal to him personally, in God's name to stop. To stop now. To stop tonight. For not stopping now, he may never stop, and never stopping, as to his body he will lie down in a drunkard's grave, and as to his soul he will lie down in a drunkard's hell. To the total abstainer I would say, renew your pledges, continue to keep them faithfully. To the moderate drinkers, beware of the glass that tips on the side of the scale of intemperance. What we want in this country gentlemen, are men who will stand on the thresholds of their homes and swear, so help me God, the curse of strong drink shall never cross this threshold until it has split the last drop of my blood upon its sill."

"The evening's dogmatic sermon on 'The Power of Forgiving Sin,' was delivered by Father Sullivan, whose sermon tonight will be on 'Mercy.'"

Two Men.

I know a man who's blessed with wealth. Has everything he wants but health. Yet he's had manhood, has a knack of saying things behind one's back. Is slangy, coarse, intemperate, swears, helps, tradespenny, he never spares! With almost every vicious trait. He's looked upon as being "great!"

I know another man who waits. On this great man, but, please the fates, He's not like him—he's quite polite. To speak colloquially, is "white." Was never known or ever heard To utter a blaspheming word; He's not a gentleman—oh, no! His training that far didn't go; And yet I think between these two I much prefer the last, don't you?

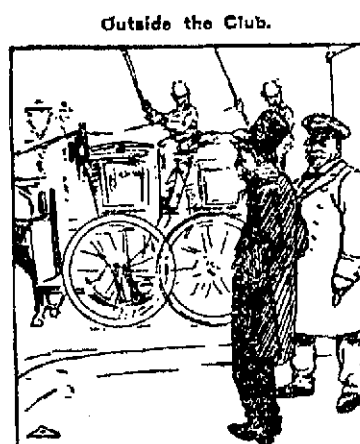

—La Touche Hancock in New York Press

According to a recent book of reference, Washington has 78 public statues, New York 76, Boston 36, Philadelphia 33 and Chicago possibly 20. It is said that the total number of public statues in the country at large is 538. It is not stated whether these figures refer solely to portrait statues, but presumably they do, for American cities have few ideal statues and still fewer fountains.

The Cheapest Fuel is Coal—Not Gas

If you don't believe it you have but to make the test for yourself.

With a Buck's steel range—the greatest fuel saver made, you can cook an entire dinner consisting of several dishes, bake bread and heat fifty or more gallons of water—all with one fire. With gas you would require six or eight different fires as the case might be—and then the cooking would not be so well done—and the expense tremendously greater.

Let us show you many advantages of these wonderful stoves.

INDIAN ENDS ARE MARVELS IN THE OPEN FOOTBALL OF THE PRESENT SEASON

The game played by the Carlisle Indians against Pennsylvania on Saturday last has given everybody something to talk about and more to think about from a football standpoint. More than ever are those who have persistently maintained that there was good in the new rules, confirmed in their belief that the game can be made open and that it also can be made interesting.

Little by little football is so shaping itself that the spectators and the players are promoting themselves for more daring and less conventional play. Realizing that the changes which have been made are likely to stay made, coaches who are prudent are giving up the idea that it is good policy to fight the forward pass and the outside kick and are teaching both plays as fundamentals to the game.

It is probable that greater attention should have been given to building up a defense for the open game, and thereby the very object would have been achieved for which the rules committee labored when it held its many sessions in this city.

Glenn Warner, the Indian coach, has long been recognized as a successful football strategist. He has never been a firm believer in the old, straight, orthodox football. Before the rules were modified Warner had deviated from old style play, and had begun to teach his players with shifts and other formations that were at variance with the methods of nineteenth-century coaches. This year, with a team sufficiently receptive, he has taught new football with such telling effect that other coaches have been impressed with its possibilities, and have come to the conclusion that they must seek to establish similar knowledge of the game among their own charges.

In other words the forward pass, the side kick, and like methods of advancing the ball are not to be accepted as freak plays, but as a part of the game, which must be reckoned with as much as the primitive method of advancing the ball through the line by a series of sharp and aggressive plunges.

In developing the game for the Indians Warner has given his ends plenty of work, and fortunately for him he has two of the most capable ends playing football this year. It is no exaggeration to say that as a team, two ends have not played in such superior style as Carlisle and Gardner did against Pennsylvania.

Not only did they divine the plays made against them by the Pennsylvania eleven, but they supported the backs of their own team in a manner that was as perfect as anything could be in football.

They were strong in interference, blocking, and in the method of blocking the runner which, while it comes under the rules, is perhaps as gritty an exhibition as has been seen this season or any other. They wait until the runner is almost upon them and then plunge directly in front of him. Frequently Pennsylvania players were dropped to the ground by the force of the collision, and in spite of the fact that such shoving would seem to be as hard upon the blocking end as the player who was stopped, Carlisle and Gardner would come out of the mix-up as fresh, apparently, as if they had merely shaken hands with their opponents.

Another good feature of the work of the Indian ends is the perfect assistance they give to the man on their own side who is running with the ball, and this is made doubly valuable by reason of the fact that the Indians, who are directed to run with the ball, follow their interference almost side by side.

PIONEERS TAKE SERIES AND BREAK TIE FOR THE LEAD

Best Games of Brunswick Season Mark Battle—Columbias Win.

In the best series of the season at the Brunswick the Pioneers swept the Indians in three fast games last night and the men were in such good form that the 206-man was touched several times during the contest. Harkender led the procession with 228, Dochman with 218, and Smith followed with 205. Smith rolled in two games and in both he beat the double century, finishing with 204 for an average. Connolly was high average man among the men who played the whole series and had 191. The winners came near an average of 900 for the series. The battle was for the leadership of the first league.

The Pioneers made some good scores although they were never forced to go at top speed as the Victors were easy marks from the start and rolled low scores in the three games. There was but one high score registered and that went to Wegman in the opener. The scores:

MINOR LEAGUES DEPART FROM MEETING WITH GOOD FEELING

There Will Be No War and the Clouds Disappear from Horizon.

New York, Nov. 1.—The minor league baseball magnates finished their annual business meeting and most of the delegates left for home last night. The proposition that the Pacific Coast, Western and Southern Leagues be reduced to the category of class B was discussed by the committee on the constitution, and tabled for keeps by the association after being presented by J. L. O'Brien, president of the American Association. The Eastern League was allied with O'Brien's organization.

Several important changes were made in the constitution. A committee was appointed to meet and confer with the national commission to the end that the number of players the major league could take from the minors each year be reduced.

The convention went fairly on record against contract jumping, and passed a resolution forbidding the minors from employing any player now on the blacklist, including Campbell, who was reinstated by the national commission. The commission was requested to allow that contract jumper and one other to remain in peace in the Tri-State League.

No minor league club will be allowed to carry more than twenty players on the reserve list. The committee appointed by President Powers to meet the commission will be Hanton, Kavanaugh, Carson, Schively and Baumeister, representing the Western, Eastern, Southern and American leagues.

The minors were united on every move and parted with broad smiles. The unpleasant feature came in the way of news from San Francisco saying the California Trust company had suspended. As President Cal Hanton is a state bank examiner, he was forced to leave on an early train. As the California delegates left the room there were given three rousing cheers for the finest bunch of sportsmen seen in base ball in many years.

The national board of directors, disposing of several minor cases, and met again today.

Mal Eason was given his release from the Newark club, which was carrying him on the reserve list. Eason will manage a club in the New England League next season.

GARDINER SIDESTEPS A BATTLE WITH ABLE JACK MORGAN

Affair of Summit City Club Apparently Has Fallen Clear Through.

Unless Jimmy Gardner has a change of mind his match with Jack Morgan of Indianapolis, will not come off in this city. Jimmy had been expected to be cleared clear over the traces and yesterday left for Philadelphia after having refused to sign the articles put out by the Philadelphia club. He is not known, but some of his admirers here suspect that the decisive fashion in which he has been cleared over the traces is due to the fact that he has been cleared over the traces by the Philadelphia club. He is not known, but some of his admirers here suspect that the decisive fashion in which he has been cleared over the traces is due to the fact that he has been cleared over the traces by the Philadelphia club.

Jimmy's own terms had been accepted by the club and by Morgan. Wednesday night he wanted the signing of the articles put out until yesterday morning. Then he balked and threw the whole arrangement overboard and hiked for Philadelphia, where he is to meet "Uncle Russell" a week from tonight.

The match had been on for weeks. Jimmy's own terms had been accepted by the club and by Morgan. Wednesday night he wanted the signing of the articles put out until yesterday morning. Then he balked and threw the whole arrangement overboard and hiked for Philadelphia, where he is to meet "Uncle Russell" a week from tonight.

It is possible the match may be revived, but the outlook is not promising. Matchmaker Morgan is now heading his energies to get a match on between Billy Pape, just won the most spectacular youngster in the ring, and a middleweight contender of the world. This would make a go that would draw from all over this town Thanksgiving day.

MORGAN DOESN'T UNDERSTAND. Surprised at Refusal of Gardiner to Meet Him.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 1.—Tom Carroll, manager, was the most surprised man in town when he heard of Gardiner's action last night. His plans are unsettled, but he has several chances for his man to work right away.

He firmly believes that Morgan would have beaten Gardiner if he had entered the ring with him. Carroll said last night: "They are fading out how good Jack is."

The local club is trying to match Morgan with a champion. Morgan is now heading his energies to get a match on between Billy Pape, just won the most spectacular youngster in the ring, and a middleweight contender of the world. This would make a go that would draw from all over this town Thanksgiving day.

Gregg, Willie Lewis and Honey Melody have been suggested as Morgan's next opponents. Jack is willing to meet any of them except Gregg, and may be persuaded to take on the Indian, and he is willing to sign for a match with Jack Daugherty or some other boy and he is willing to go there.

Young Sharkey has begun preparations for his battle with Young Kid Farmer, which takes place here on November 13, when the next show of the local club is to be held. Jimmy Conley and Kid Lucca will mix in the first bout.

STUDENTS WHO PLAYED FOOTBALL PUT OUT OF COLLEGE

Valparaiso Expels Members of an Eleven Playing Match Game.

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 1.—Several students of Valparaiso university were expelled yesterday because they played football on Wednesday at Hammond, Ind., in violation of the rules of the school. The town of Valparaiso is excited over the action of the university and the faculty of the institution were so wrought up about it that the professors couldn't secure their attention at classes. Many games were held in the town and on the campus. The townpeople were almost equally divided on the wisdom of the faculty's action, but the students were inclined to condemn it, as the expelled athletes were popular.

Four years ago, as a result of the agitation against football, following the killing or maiming for life of many college students, the university authorities decided to permit no more regular football at the institution. The students were permitted to kick the ball and to play football in the school yard, but they were not allowed to play on games with outside teams.

The present season, however, some of the students of the university organized a regular eleven. They did not practice any more at the university, but they played and practiced in town and called themselves the Valparaiso team, giving out the impression, to the university authorities at least, that they considered themselves a town team and in no wise connected with the university. Every one knows they are from the college.

So the visiting team was advertised as the Valparaiso university team and made a great impression on the Hammond girls and went back to the university well pleased with itself until the faculty found the members before it for an investigation.

Finda Football Is Brutal. "Several of the trustees of the team have been dismissed from the school," said Vice President C. P. Kinsey of the university in no uncertain terms. "It is a gross violation of the university's policy to maintain discipline. They knew the rules and have no one to blame but themselves. They were reprehensible in playing at all." Their claim to being a town team was only a subterfuge, as all are members of the university, and the university is not opposed to athletic sports and is willing to encourage them, but draws the line at football, which has been so often overplayed and over again to be brutal and dangerous.

The cases of the other members of the team are being considered individually. The university authorities refused to give the names of the expelled students, but they are all residents of northern Indiana. In the football lineup the names of the players are Alvin, Long, Daugherty, Duggan, Martin, Gavin, who was captain, Thompson, Sherer, Troegner, Elliott and Plimmon.

lame knee. A special steel brace has been made to protect the knee and prevent Coach McGugin from Dr. Sarah Stahl will be manipulated without the knee against the Wolverines. In putting the final touches on the Commodore McGugin has not allowed his men to overwork themselves. There really has been no change from the regular routine, and the practice one would think Vanderbilt was to meet some small team instead of Michigan. McGugin is not worried. He appears to believe that Vanderbilt has an even chance. "The Wolverines are heavier by many pounds than Vanderbilt," said the coach today. "Their line is wonderful as is fully proven by the fact that not a foul has been made against the Maine and Blue this year. They also have a good set of backs, but in this year our end, too, are better, and, as you know, in the present day and times it requires a good back field and fast ends to win football games. One thing sure, Michigan will not break down our defense with its weight."

BOWSER IS MALIGNED

Wife's Headache Causes Him to Become Solicitous For Welfare.

MOTHER-IN-LAW SUSPICIOUS.

Thinks His Apparent Goodness Covers Up Some Dark Scheme—Tells Her Daughter to Be on the Lookout. Philosopher Falls Asleep.

[Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.]

Soon after Mr. Bowser left the house the other morning Mrs. Bowser was taken with sick headache, and after battling against it for two or three hours she had to take to her bed. She knew that she would be feeling better next day, but she almost dreaded Mr. Bowser's home coming that evening. He had said on leaving the house that he would take a trolley ride that evening. The dinner would be left to the cook to get, and she would be sure to burn the steak and leave lumps in the mashed potatoes. Mr. Bowser would come tramping upstairs when he found that she was ill and, standing by her bedside, would indulge in the following remarks:

"Sick again, eh? I thought it was about time you made another fifty dollar doctor's bill."

"That's always the way when we plan to go anywhere."

"You have probably devoured a raw coconut and been around barefoot."

"No use to call a doctor. You are struck with death already."

"By John, but not one woman in a thousand knows the first thing about taking care of her health!"

"I suppose I must eat dinner with the cook."

"I'll be going out this evening and may not be back until after midnight."

HE TOOK THE CAT BY THE BACK OF THE NECK.

If you should want anything, you can ask the cook."

"If I ever marry again, I'll wed a Dutch girl who has worked in the fields every day of her life. I was figuring up the other day, and I find that your doctor bills have averaged about a thousand dollars a year since we got married. That's what a man gets for marrying a string."

Mrs. Bowser groaned and moaned when she thought of it, but as 6 o'clock came she braced up to meet the inevitable. She heard Mr. Bowser in the hall downstairs, she heard the cook explaining to him, she heard him on the stairs, and then he was in the room and saying:

"You poor, dear child, you! But why didn't you telephone me to come home and take care of you? I could have come as well as not."

"I've got—got one of my old headaches," she explained.

"Too bad. I know how you always suffer with them."

"But I thought—thought you'd be mad."

"What a silly woman! Why should I be mad because you are temporarily ill? You are not ill because you want to be. Any one is liable to a headache any day. Did you send for the doctor?"

"I didn't dare to. I thought you'd complain about the bill."

"More nonsense. Your doctor's bill wouldn't buy seed for a canary. Shall I make up a cup of tea and some toast with my own hands?"

"Y-yes."

Had a Crying Spell.

And when he had departed downstairs Mrs. Bowser had a crying spell and said to herself that he was the best husband that ever lived. She was a bit scared too. He had come home to act so totally different that she could not make it out. She had prepared herself for a bit of bulldozing, but he had used only the kindest words. She didn't feel that she could eat or drink a thing, but to reward him she made a heroic pretense and even made the statement that she felt better. Then Mr. Bowser continued his strange antics.

He got a wet cloth for her head. He shook up her pillow.

He sat and fanned her.

He removed his shoes so as not to make a noise.

He took the cat by the back of the neck and dropped her on the stairs, and in soft whispers he warned her that if there was any mauling around the house that night it would mean a sudden and terrible death to at least one feline he knew of.

He sneaked down and saw the cook and warned her against bange and slams and jars. He said that if she felt she must break plates and platters to do it gently.

Then he sneaked back upstairs and resumed the fanning, and when Mrs. Bowser said that she was sorry to make him so much trouble he replied: "It's no trouble at all. It's a privilege to wait on you. See if you can't go to sleep while I sit and fan you."

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Bowser was asleep. Then the cook came to the head of the stairs and indulged in strange motions, and when he slipped out to see what was wanted she whispered:

"There's an old woman down in the hall who wants to see you, and I don't think it will be healthy for you to keep her waiting."

Mr. Bowser went down, and there sat his mother-in-law. At sight of him she rose up and said:

"Look here, Samuel, what's going on in this house? Where's my daughter? Have you finally poisoned her off?"

Welcomes Mother-in-law.

"I'm glad to see you, mother," he answered as he held out his hand. "If you'd told me you were coming I'd have been at the depot to meet you. The poor wife is upstairs with one of her headaches."

"And I suppose you have been jawing around because it happens to be so?"

"I made her some tea and toast, and she is now asleep."

"You haven't banged around with hammer or saw?"

"No, mother."

"Nor run the lawn mower or whistled a dancing tune?"

"No. Come down and have something to eat before you go up. I haven't had my dinner yet."

The mother-in-law went down with him, but she looked at him with doubt and distrust and finally asked:

"What did you do when you came home and found Sarah in bed?"

"I tried to make her comfortable, of course."

"You didn't ask her if she thought this was a public hospital?"

"No."

"You didn't say she must have slept with her feet out of the window?"

"No."

"You didn't lay it to cheese or raw turnip or clipped up cabbage and ask where her sense had gone to?"

"No, mother—nothing of the kind."

"Didn't say that but for her doctor bills you'd have been a millionaire by this time?"

"No."

Would Find Out the Truth.

That was all, but the old lady set her jaw and said to herself that she'd find out the truth of things within a few minutes. When she rose from the table she said to Mr. Bowser:

"I want you right here the whole evening. No sneaking out to any of your clubs."

"I wasn't going to."

"And you don't want to get no flying machines out in the back yard and no roller skating in the attic."

"No, mother, I shall take a book and sit down and read until you call me."

The mother-in-law gave him a strange look and then went upstairs to find the invalid awake and feeling considerably better. When she was told of the kind words and attitude of Mr. Bowser she thought for a moment and then said:

"Sarah, you look out. It isn't natural. It isn't the way husbands do. There's something behind all this."

"Why, mother, how should he act?"

"Natural. The natural way for a husband to act when he comes home and finds his wife with a headache is to blow around and make things worse. On a dozen different occasions I've had your father call me a doll and a string and threaten to get a divorce. It's a good thing I arrived here when I did. If Samuel Bowser has got any little game of putting arsenic in your tea or spreading Paris green on your toast, he'll have me to deal with."

It was fully three hours before she descended to the sitting room to see what Mr. Bowser was about and to give him certain instructions to be followed on the morrow, and then she found him curled up on the lounge and fast asleep and the cat watching him from a distance.

"Looks like innocence," she murmured as she bent over him, "but you never can tell about these husbands—you never can tell."

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

Twenty-Five Years Ago

What The Sentinel Had to Say About Persons and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Invitations are out for the first hop of the Pittsburgh boys, Nov. 23.

Hallowe'en was duly celebrated last night by numerous rollicking spirits.

"Jack" Kuhns writes from Stock's Mills, Ala., that he likes his new quarters very much.

The lecture to be delivered in Fort Wayne by Col. R. G. Ingersoll is his new one on "Talmaglan Theology."

Governor Porter, Secretary of State Wolfe and Treasurer of State Hill were all guests of the Avenue last night.

A. A. Martin has opened a grocery and provision store at Main and Harrison streets. He was recently with Laugard on Columbia street.

Rev. William Shiller, D. D., is ill at his home on Barr street. It is feared that his injuries received at Laporte will result fatally. His age is 82 years.

Mrs. Stephen Morris left for Indianapolis this morning. Miss Juliet Morris accompanied her. They will be the guests of Judge John Morris, of the supreme bench.

One of the Indian lads at the M. E.

college has been sent back to his reservation. He pined for the wild life of the plains and chafed under the restraints of civilization.

Charles Sorg, of Fort Wayne, is one of the "Four Aces," grotesque dancers with Barlow, Wilson & Co.'s minstrels. Charles has changed his name in honor of this city, his home, to "Charles Wayne."

The venerable Mrs. White, mother of Blush White, of Washington town, died night before last at the advanced age of 106. Mrs. White was one of the oldest, if not the oldest, inhabitants of Allen county.

Mary Anderson's advance sale is very large, and the Academy will be packed to see her performance of Pauline in "The Lady of Lyons." This will be the last opportunity to see Miss Anderson in this city, as next season she visits only the larger cities and makes no one-night stands.

OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN BY IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

If Old Sores were due to outside influences, or if the cause was confined strictly to the diseased flesh around the ulcer, then external treatment and simple cleanliness would cure them. But the trouble is in the blood, which has become unhealthy and diseased, and keeps the sore open by continually discharging into it the impurities and poisons with which the circulation is filled. This poisonous condition of the blood may be the remains of some constitutional trouble; the effect of a long spell of sickness, or because the natural refuse of the body, which should pass off through the proper avenues, has been left in the system and absorbed into the blood. Again, the cause may be hereditary; but it does not matter how the poison becomes entrenched in the blood, the fact that the sore will not heal is evidence of a deep underlying cause. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., may cause the place to scab over temporarily, but the blood is not made any purer by such treatment, and soon the old inflammation and discharge will return and the sore be as bad or worse than before. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, cleanses and purifies the blood, and makes a permanent cure. S. S. S. enriches and freshens the circulation so that instead of discharging unhealthy matter into the place, it carries rich, tissue-building, flesh-healing blood to the diseased parts and in every way assists in a natural cure of the sore. "I was completely prostrated from overwork. I had no appetite, could not sleep, my kidneys, liver and bowels became inactive, and as I grew weaker I could not retain either medicine or food on my stomach, and raised blood. The doctors said my condition was critical and I would probably die.

"As I had seen Vinol prescribed for my patients with such remarkable results, I decided to try it. After the first bottle I began to improve. I continued its use, and soon began to sleep and eat well; every organ in my body was strengthened and became normal, until it seemed good to be alive and I was restored to perfect health and strength.

"I advise all my patients who need strength, rich, red blood, and flesh tissue to take Vinol, as it is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil, emulsions, or other tonics." Elizabeth M. A number of anniversaries were observed. Mr. and Mrs. Hovel, parents of the groom, were married thirty-three years ago and Mrs. Peter Junk celebrated her fifth wedding anniversary, and the day was also the natal anniversary of Aloisius Hacke, the youngest brother of the bride. AND THERE SHALL BE NO MORE DEATH

And God Shall Wipe Away All Tears from Their Eyes.

M. L. Herr, a Representative of the Watch-Tower Bible and Tract Society Will Give a Discourse at the Elektron Hall, Sunday, Nov. 3, 1907, 3 P. M.

The human race are God's children by creation; the work of his hands—and his plan with reference to them is clearly revealed in his Word. Paul says that the first man (who was a sample of what the race will be when perfect) was of the earth, earthly; and his posterity, with the exception of the Gospel church, will in the resurrection still be earthly, human, adapted to the earth. (1 Cor. 15: 38, 44).

It is this portion that God has elected to give to the human race. And what a glorious portion! Close your eyes for a moment to the scenes of misery and woe, degradation and sorrow that prevail on account of sin, and picture before your mind: vision of the glory of the perfect earth. Not a stain of sin mars the harmony and peace of a perfect society; not a bitter thought, not an unkind look or word; love, welling up from every heart, meets a kindred response in every other heart, and benevolence marks every act. There sickness shall be no more; not an ache nor pain, nor any evidence of decay—not even the fear of such things. Think of all the piteous and comparative health and beauty of human form and feature that you have ever seen, and know that perfect humanity will be of still surpassing loveliness. The inward purity and mental and moral perfection will stamp and glorify every radiant countenance. Such will earth's society be; and weeping bereaved ones will have their tears all wiped away, when thus they realize the resurrection work complete.—Rev. 21:4.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a medicine, but a remedy which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without the least harm, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I uniformly cure all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those same like granular matter, found in Rheumatic blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual cause to suffer longer with out help. "When did you get out of jail?" he says, bringing him to grief. I deliver my yarn—you pay the cash. That ends the transaction.

"You want to know about country folks. You say you were born in the country, and you remember the green meadows, babbling brooks and frisking lambs. You also remember Uncle Josh and Aunt Mary and how they used to put a light in the window of a dark night to guide the tired wayfarer. You can remember seeing a tramp or two when you was a little shaver. You can remember that he was invited in to dinner, that he was given old clothes and cash, and that your mother had fears in her eyes and your father said it was a shame that the world drove a man from pillar to post in that way.

"Oh, yes! Oh, yes! I see the picture just as you do, and you will excuse me if I grin a grin or two. The world hasn't stood still while you have gone on. It's gone right along with you, and there have been a few changes in the country.

Why Tramps Go to Cities.
"Take a walk and you will find those same green meadows, those same brooks, those same lambs, but you won't find Uncle Josh and Aunt Mary no more. They have been dead for years. A city like this seems a hard hearted and cruel place, and you shiver at the idea of being dead broke. Let me tell you that tramps are driven into the cities to recuperate. All the clothing I have had for the last five years has been begged in the city. All the money I have had has come from the dwellers therein. The only kind words I have heard have come from the hurly burly. Makes you open your eyes, doesn't it? You are still clinging to the old fashioned ideas of the country.

"My friend, let me tell you something. There isn't today a harder man to deal with than the average farmer. There isn't a woman with less sentiment than his wife. There's been a mighty change in the last twenty years. Indeed, it is a change that was forced on the farmer to protect himself. In years ago, in tramping over the highway, I have met lightning rod men, windmill men, piano men, hayfork men, commission men, peddlers, chicken buyers and horse traders. All were after the farmer. Each and every one intended to beat him and did beat him. He was beaten when he sold his produce, and he was beaten when he bought his goods. He was considered fair game all around. It was argued that his peaceful surroundings made him gullible, and I guess they did.

"Well, Uncle Josh and Aunt Mary died twenty years ago, and their children took hold. That babbling brook babbles for cash now. The green meadow means greenbacks. The lambskins frisk, but they frisk for the dough. The watchdog at the gate can size up a swindler as well as a man. The farmer holds on until he gets the highest price, and the merchant who sells him shoddy has got to get up early in the morning. Say, now, but I'd rather start out to beat ten men in a city than one farmer. I'd rather be dead broke here than to have a dollar in my pocket out in the country. If taken ill here I'm sent to a free hospital; if taken sick in the country the Lord helps me.

Farmer Not to Blame.
"I'm not blaming the farmer in the least. For a hundred years he was the prey of swindlers and was taken for a fool. If he's got his eyes opened at last and is taking care of himself, and I assure you that such is the case, then so much the better for him. It is the dilapidated gentleman who suffers most from this change.

"Why is a sailor a sailor? Nineteen times out of twenty it is because he wants to rove the seas. Why is a tramp a tramp? Nineteen times out of twenty it is because he wants to rove the land. It is a nervous, restless feeling that he cannot withstand. He wants to get somewhere, and he is no sooner there than he wants to get somewhere else. The majority of them are sober men. They are as honest as the average. Not one in twenty will refuse to work for a meal or for pay. Not one in twenty commits a crime for which he should be jailed. You can't make statistics talk any other way. The whining, lying, vicious tramp has his home in the city and stays there.

"It is the press of the country that has got the farmer down on the tramp. You may drive for fifty miles and interview each farmer as you come to him and you won't find five to say that a tramp ever caused them any trouble. In summer the tramp may steal a few apples or turnips. Any one driving along the highway is free to do that. Should he steal an ax, shovel, plow, sheep, calf or break into the house and steal a watch or clothes, what is he going to do with his plunder? The instant he tries to realize on it he is nabbed. The tramp who entered a house and stole $50 in cash would be worse off than if he hadn't a cent.

"I can walk into that bakery over there and say that I am hungry and the woman will give me a stale loaf. I can tackle most any man passing here for a dime for lodgings money and get it. I can wander down most any residence street and raise a hat, a coat or a pair of shoes. How is it out in the country? We'll say I've hoofed it all day, making about fifteen miles. I've stopped to rest now and then and view the scenery. Don't you make no mistake about that scenery feature. If any art company wanted to publish a thousand views it couldn't do better than to ask the tramps where to find the best ones. For lunch I pulled two turnips from a field. My drink was from a brook. Along about 6 o'clock I hunger for cooked victuals, and, as it looks like rain, I would like to get lodgings in a barn. I turn aside to a farmhouse. The farmer is washing his hands at the well to go in to supper. Out of the tail of his eye he sees me approaching, but he pays no heed until I stand before him and say:

Accused of Being a Jailbird.

"Mister, I can milk a cow, chop wood, mow weeds or hoe in the garden. If you will give me supper and lodging on the haymow, I will work an hour at anything you wish."

"When did you get out of jail?" he asks.

"I have never been in jail."

"But you look like the durned skunk who stole a pitchfork from me last year."

"Last year I was in California."

"Want to set my barn afire with your old pipe, do you?"

"I don't smoke."

"He stands and thinks for a moment and then grudgingly tells me to take a seat on the kitchen doorstep. The wife brings me out a stinky supper. There's an abundance on the table, and part of it will go to the dogs, but she cuts me short, thinking to get ahead of me. I have cleared my plate in ten minutes, and then I am set to work and buckle in until too dark to see longer. My bed is on the hay, and twice during the night the farmer comes out to see if I haven't stolen the shingles off the roof. In the morning if I want a meager breakfast I must put in a good hour's work for it. That means an hour and a half, and when I thank the farmer for his generosity and get ready to go on he says:

"Goin', eh? Well, that's the way with you durned critters. I've filled you up and lodged you, and now you want to play the sneak on me."

"My friend, don't look for much sentiment in humanity these days and don't look for a bit of it out in the country. You won't find it. The farmer can't afford it. He has been beaten by sharpers and squeezed by trusts until he has lost faith in every one. He has buttermilk, but it's for sale, and before selling it to you he wants a certificate that you have never stolen a haystack or run away with a field of buckwheat."

BEST WAY TO USE LIME

Much of Its Value Is Lost by Not Putting on the Ground Properly.

(By Prof. A. M. Soule, Director Virginia Station.)

THE best way to use lime for agricultural purposes is to remove it from the kiln as soon as burned, place it in the field in heaps of from 3 to 5 bushels, so placed that from 40 to 60 bushels shall be left on each acre of land. The lime may then be left to slake, though in case of rain the work may not be effectively done and large cakes will be left.

It is, therefore, wise to cover the piles of lime lightly with moist soil. The slaking will then occur within a few days and will be perfectly done. The lime may then be scattered uniformly over the soil. This takes some time and involves a good deal of labor, but it is one of the most effective methods of application so far discovered.

Another method of application which seems to be coming into favor and which has a great deal to recommend it is that of applying with the drill. The difficulty hitherto has been to make the application heavy enough, and it is necessary to grind the lime after burning before the application can be effectively made.

A number of concerns are now putting up fresh burned lime finely ground in sacks that are supposed to be perfectly air-tight. Some considerable amount of water is no doubt absorbed and the method is objectionable to that extent, but not so much so as the high price which is asked for lime put up in this form.

If the writer has been correctly informed, from $10.00 to $12.00 a ton is asked for this so-called agricultural lime, which makes it use prohibitive to the farmer. As already indicated, from 40 to 60 bushels will be a liberal application. It is best, as a rule, applied on the surface and incorporated with some surface working implement. It will sink into the soil fast enough.

Application should be made some time before seeding so that the calcareous properties of the lime will not injure germination. On meadows and pastures liming, as a rule, is best done in the fall. In many sections of the country where lime rock is abundant and fallen timber cheap, lime can be burned on the farm, or through the farmers clubbing together at a very moderate cost, not to exceed 5 cents per bushel.

Where lime can be purchased at 10 cents per bushel its application is likely to prove profitable on general crops, provided, of course, the soil needs it. When it costs more than this amount, it is doubtful as to whether it can be applied with profit except in trucking regions.

The use of lime is a matter of grave importance to our farmers and they can determine quite simply where it will pay them to use it or not. A small package of blue litmus paper may be obtained at any drug store for 5 or 10 cents.

By taking one of the strips and dipping it in a handful of earth moistened with rain water, it will be a simple matter to determine whether the soil is acid or not. If the blue paper is turned red it is an evidence of acid, and if this change takes place rapidly it shows the presence of a considerable amount of acid.

Lime rock is obtained throughout the whole Appalachian Region and its application should be more general. At the same time, it is of the utmost importance that the farmer appreciate the action of this important soil amendment. He must also learn that it is not a fertilizer and that its extravagant use, if long continued, will be a serious matter.

It is now clearly established that our upland fields are quite as likely to show an acid reaction as the low and moist bottom lands, and as the agricultural areas of Great Britain and Continental Europe have been so much benefited by the use of lime on fields long cultivated, and on wet lowlands, the same results are certain to follow in this country. A large percentage of our land will undoubtedly be benefited by liming, though it is said on good authority that not more than 1 per cent has ever been limed up to the present time.

It is hoped that these suggestions may be of some value to those who contemplate the use of lime, and may throw some light on some of the more difficult problems of soil amelioration which, of necessity, are now engaging the more serious attention of our farmers, and which as years go by must of necessity receive more careful attention in order to maintain the soil in a productive condition.

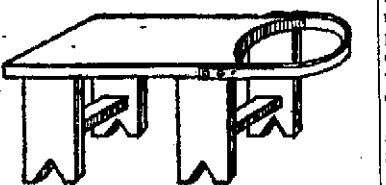

J. A. Bietelman, a Pennsylvania farmer, was seized with the jumping toothache and no dentist within miles. He tied a string to a spoke of his wagon wheel and the other end to his tooth, and then bracing himself gave his horse the gad. There was one revolution of the wheel and both the offending molar and Mr. Bietelman came out. He was jerked from his seat, fell on his head, and the horse ran away. But he no longer has the toothache.

A scorching automobilist, near Elwood, Ind., turned a short bend in the road and surprised a horse which was quietly grazing. The auto struck the horse with great force and threw the animal into the front seat into the lap of the driver. It required an hour to unload the horse and the auto went to the machine shop for repairs.

Some fruit growers in Michigan claim that thousands of peach trees have been killed last winter and that it will take that state 10 years to recover its losses in the fruit trade.

MAKING SWAMP LANDS PAY.

There is a prospect that the reclamation of swamp lands will be taken hold of in a large way by the National Government. The authorities at Washington are seriously discussing the need and desirability of this. Most of the state laws are inadequate, and as a result the work goes on altogether too slowly for the requirements of rapidly growing population. There are sixty million acres of swamp lands lying scattered from coast to coast, from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. If this new project of the Government is carried out it will provide good farms for from one million to two million families and render possible a rural productive life for seven or eight million persons. These lands would, in many cases, make homes and heritages for the poor, the unfortunate and the untalented, be they native or foreign, now residing in the large cities. One of the most important facts in connection with the reclamation of swamp lands in various parts of the country is that thousands of people who do not wish to go to the remote frontiers would be able to become farmers.

A handy milking stool that costs 50 cents and two hours' work.

WEATHER AND MILK YIELD.

There is a general opinion among farmers that a severe storm or a snap of cold weather diminishes the yield of milk and also reduces the quality. Careful observers, however, have noticed that the effect of a storm is sometimes to decrease the quantity, at other times to increase it.

An explanation of such contrary results is difficult to give, but it appears to depend partly on the violence of the storm, and partly on the quality and quantity of the food. When a cow, during the summer months, is in good pasture and can eat its full ration, it will not have a bad influence, but if the food is deficient in quantity or quality, then the effect of the storm will be to reduce the yield, for there has been an extra call on the vital power of the animal.

Every storm or bad weather to which the cow is exposed so that she suffers from it, diminishes the yield of milk and this decrease should serve as a sign to the owner that the cow is not being sufficiently looked after. Self-preservation is the law of Nature, and the cow takes first from her food that which is requisite to maintain bodily warmth and the surplus she uses for milk production.

When the bad weather comes she eats more than usual and sometimes has an extra surplus available for conversion into milk. There is, however, a marked difference in the effect between a moderately cold weather and one so severe that the cow suffers from it. In general it can be said that anything that causes discomfort to the cow will diminish the milk yield.

If the cow has plenty of nourishing food and the temperature falls so she will eat more and more as it gets colder and at the same time she will usually give a small increased yield. If the temperature continues severe, the extra food being limited by the digestive powers of the animal, the milk will fall off in quantity.—W. R. Gilbert.

GETTING GOOD RESULTS.

According to tested experiments pure buttermilk is equal in food value to skim milk almost pound for pound and six pounds of skim milk are considered about equal to one pound of grain.

When separator skim milk is given to pigs there is a value of about 30 cents per hundred pounds while corn is 60 cents a bushel.

Both sweet and sour milk give almost the same results in hog feeding. In some cases they do better on sour milk. If you have quantities of skim milk, nine pounds of it to one pound of grain is well, but if scarce, you will get fine results by allowing three pounds to one pound of grain. Skim milk and corn work best together and many add wheat bran.

KNOWING HOW TO FEED EXACTLY.

In giving out grain some may be ground coarse and such seeds as are hard coated—like wheat and barley—should be coarsely ground for the cows yielding milk. For other stock the process of natural mastication is preferable.

The feeder needs to have much practical experience in knowing how best to handle the stock in charge. When feed is given in large quantities rather than by weight, one is hardly knows the real amount he is feeding, because grains vary in weight per bushel. For instance, one quart of corn will weigh more than one quart of oats, although one pound of oats contains more digestible protein than one pound of corn.

A feeder must study such differences and know the amount of digestible nutriment which cows receive when the food is portioned by volume instead of weight before he attempts much care of stock.

A GLANCE AT THE CROPS.

It is reported that the pear crop will be only 50 per cent. of an average yield. Michigan, which generally produces a large crop of Kieffer pears, will have only 40 per cent of an average.

The first carload of California cherries which reached New York this year consisted of 1500 boxes and sold for $4,000.

Corn belt states will produce an average number of hogs this year. Prices have ruled high during the past year and the outlook for 1907 is particularly encouraging.

Iowa will have a big crop and how good, one expert declares, that the yield will be over 3,000,000,000 bushels.

Kansas is counting on a 65,000,000 bushel wheat crop, but it is likely that it will run nearer 75,000,000 which is nearly as much as that produced last year.

ART OF CHEESE MAKING

Industry Is Developing Rapidly and Farmers Are Learning to Make High-Class Product.

(By Prof. A. C. True, Director, U. S. Experiment Stations.)

MILK free from taint and nearly fresh, 1 a., with very little acid when it is received at the factory, has been shown to be one of the first requisites to good cheese. Tainted milk and that containing bacteria and molds, has been one of the great sources of trouble in cheese making, and the milk of a single patron may affect the whole output of a factory by causing gassy curds and other difficulties. A simple curd test was developed by the Wisconsin Station a few years ago which has enabled the detection of faulty milk and has been a great aid to the cheese maker.

One of the first stages in cheese making is the production of the curd. For generations rennet, or rennet extract prepared from the stomach of calves, has been used for this purpose, and it has been supposed that rennet contained at least two different ferments, each of which served its special purpose. From recent studies, however, it appears that the effect is due to only one ferment, whose action is essentially like that of pepsin.

An extended study of the subject at the New York State Experiment Station has led to the conclusion that rennet is really a peptic ferment and acts as such in cheese making. This being so, the question arises as to why commercial pepsin should not be used in place of rennet. This has been tried at the Wisconsin Station and Ohio State University with entire success, and has since then been tested on a commercial scale in an Ohio cheese factory. Cheese made in this way was normal in every respect and was of high quality.

Some of the advantages of scale pepsin over rennet extracts are that it is of more uniform strength, keeps better, especially in warm weather, and is free from bacteria and molds.

In the process of curdling milk the casein, or albuminoid of the milk, is coagulated by the ferment, enveloping and holding most of the fat and part of the sugar of milk. As a result of curdling the casein is changed slightly in its chemical composition. The new compound enters into combination with the lactic acid (the acid of sour milk) in the curd, and the resulting compound is found to be the one which strings on a hot iron, a test applied to the curd since time immemorial. Its chemical name is paracasein monolactate, the paracasein being the result of the rennet action, and the monolactate the union with one part of lactic acid.

The fresh curd will not string out into fine threads when touched to a hot iron, and it is found that the formation of a certain amount of acid in the curd is necessary to bring about this change.

This acid is produced by lactic acid bacteria, from the milk sugar present in the curd; and hence in practice the curd is "cooked" at a temperature which is favorable to the action of these bacteria, the stringing on a hot iron indicating when the new product has been formed and the proper stage reached.

If the production of acid is carried too far, undesirable changes will take place in the compound, a new one containing more lactic acid being formed, which cannot be made into cheese.

The course of these chemical changes, the casein and the essential part which the lactic-acid bacteria play has only recently been worked out at the New York Experiment Station. It supplies a highly important link in the history of the process, and furnishes the starting point for studying the curing or ripening, which is the most important step in cheese making.

The principal constituent of the cheese concerned in ripening is the casein, mentioned above. The fat remains its original condition for the most part, and is not thought to be affected by the ripening. The casein compound which strings on the hot iron, and is pressed into the form of cheese is tough and indigestible.

In the ripening process it is split up into numerous compounds which are soluble and more readily digested. The first change in the green cheese is probably a digestion or breaking-down process, due to ferments which are derived from the milk itself and the rennet or pepsin added to curdle it. The change is spoken of as a digestion process because it is evidently similar to the gastric digestion which takes place in the stomach, and is due in part to a similar ferment, 1. e., pepsin.

The course of ripening is greatly modified by the conditions of the cheese and the curing room. High temperature hastens the breaking down of the casein compound, for the ferments and bacteria are far more active at 75 degrees than at 40 or 50 degrees F.; but heat also increases the activity of injurious forms, and prevents control of the ripening.

Too warm curing rooms have been shown to be one of the greatest sources of poor cheese, for in the ordinary factory curing rooms the temperature cannot be kept down in hot weather. As a result the curing goes on irregularly, and undesirable micro-organisms cause havoc with the product.

This has led to the trial of a low temperature, maintained fairly constant by artificial means. This idea was contrary to the prevalent opinion of cheese makers, who had always held that low temperature produced an inferior cheese. The results of cold curing, however, have been entirely favorable, both in experimental trials and on a commercial scale.

An extensive trial of it has recently been completed by the National Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the experiment stations in New York and Wisconsin. Nearly 500 cheeses were used, representing a great variety of kinds, sizes, and makes; and these were cured at 40 degrees, 50 degrees, and 60 degrees F.

The flavor of the cold-cured cheese was remarkably mild, but clean, and was free from all traces of bitterness or other taint. That cured at 40 degrees showed no sign of deteriorating when eight months old. The texture was fine and silky and the body close. The cheese cured at 40 degrees and 50 degrees was superior to that cured at 60 degrees, and had a higher body merical value. That cured at 60 degrees, however, was superior to cheese from ordinary curing rooms, comparison with which made the advantages of cold curing more striking.

The amount of shrinkage was much less in cold curing. At 40 degrees cheese lost only a little over 1 per cent in weight in ninety days, while that cured at 60 degrees and 60 degrees lost fully three times as much, and under ordinary factory conditions the loss would be fully four times as great in a twenty-day period.

This saving in shrinkage is an important item in figuring the yield and profits in factory practice, and has been found to be still further increased by paraffining the cheese. Paraffining has been suggested as a means of overcoming the tendency to mold in cold curing, owing to the increased dampness of the rooms. For this purpose the cheese is immersed in a bath of melted paraffin, coating it with an impervious layer, which excludes the air.

Paraffining has been found in several trials to keep the cold-cured cheeses perfectly clean and free from mold, while those not paraffined were covered with mold. It did not injure either the texture or the flavor, and in several cases the paraffined cheeses were superior in flavor.

The shrinkage was reduced about one-half, even in cold curing, due to preventing the evaporation of moisture and the escape of products formed in the cheese. The rapid introduction of paraffining in commercial practice is an indication of its accepted value. The practical advantages of cold curing warrant a considerable outlay to provide facilities for it. Quite recently 70 degrees was regarded as a suitable temperature for curing rooms, and the serious injury to the texture and flavor, and the great loss from shrinkage during a hot spell when the heat of the curing room ran up to 80 degrees or over, was not realized. The improvement from a lower temperature is apparent even in a cool summer.

Cheese makers are now convinced that they have been holding their cheese at too high a temperature, and there is a very general movement among them to provide facilities for lowering the temperature and keeping it down even in the hottest weather.

A temperature of 55 degrees to 60 degrees will doubtless prove more practical than lower ones, which would introduce new and artificial refrigeration and entail heavy expense for refrigeration.

These cattle showed a greater gain than any others fed on the farm during the past three years.

BEST HOUSES FOR PIGS.

The farmer who makes a specialty of pig pork should provide himself with good hog houses. A good plan is to follow in building a hog house that is intended for feeding pigs alone is made light feed wide and whatever length necessary to accommodate the number of pigs it is desired to fatten at one time.

A house of this kind will accommodate all the hogs that can get to the trough. But they should be connected with every hog house on an outside shed or apartment with a floor the same size as the floor in the hog house and this may be kept supplied with a coat of straw or chaff in order to save all of the manure and also keep it in sanitary condition.

The cheapest material in the end for the floor of a hog house is cement. The floor of the outdoor apartment should be from six inches to a foot lower than the house floor so as to insure a good drainage and dry sleeping quarters.

Portland cement will be the best for the floor and inside the movable partitions so that the house can be divided into pens 8x8 and thus prevent the pigs from piling up and crowding. Build with the roof sloping one way and double board the sides with building paper between so as to prevent the wind from blowing in and making draft.

The rear of the building will not need to be more than six feet in height and the front about eight. This gives plenty of room for a tall man to work inside when cleaning out and at times when the pigs require special care.

NEWLY POTTED PLANTS.

Find a hill on which there is growing timber. Remove the top layer of undecayed leaves down to where they are well decomposed and somewhat mixed with earth. Put this in a common sand sieve, sifting vigorously, tossing out all particles not easily passed through the wire net. When you have worked out a sufficient quantity add half as much fine sand and there is leaf mould and the result will mix into as much garden soil nicely. This kind of preparation of leaf mould is rich in all you need for house plants and the extra work is well repaid by the splendid results in which the plants respond to the leafy treatment.

A festival was recently held at Warsaw, Ind., to pay tribute to King Ontario, which is the principal crop raised by the farmers of that vicinity. There was a crowd of 5,000 people and they were addressed by three congressmen and an ex-governor. The Ontario crop of that county is a very large one this year and the farmers are prosperous.

Mrs. Frederick Williams, a farmer's wife living on Cooked Lake, Wis., was severely injured and her seven-year-old son also badly mangled by a dynamite cap in the boy's hip pocket which exploded while his mother was spanking him. The boy had captured one of his father's dynamite caps which he had been using to blow up stumps. Mrs. Williams used a slung shot as the instrument of punishment. She lost two fingers and received several minor wounds about her face and body.

Vegetable growers in California declare that the advance in freight rates, established October 1, will prohibit further shipments to the Eastern market.

Walter Davidson, a rich farmer of Bushnell, Ill., drew $5,000 in cash from the bank to bet on a fake foot race which two swindlers had arranged for him at Wilkesbarre, Pa., but a shrewd detective detecting their game arrested the men and saved the farmer's money.

The infant son of Chas. Earnest, of Greer County, O. T., was attempting to climb over a fence when his sun-bonnet strings caught in the top board and he was strangled to death before his mother found him.

In spite of the early summer crop killers it is now estimated that there will be a fair average yield of nearly all farm products and that owing to increased prices American farmers will receive more than $1,000,000 for their crops this year over those of last year.

Canada has a pure-food law on nearly all similar lines to the food laws of the United States.

ON A FORTY-ACRE FARM

Women Do Most of Their Own Work and Clean up Net $800 Per Year.

(By C. C. Bowfield.)

AN illustration of what woman can accomplish on a small farm is furnished by the experience of a mother and daughter who own forty acres near a provincial town in the Central West. The entire responsibility for the management of the place and the care of the family fell to their lot recently, owing to the protracted illness of the husband and father who has been bed-ridden for two years.

The following table will show in itself about how the farm is divided as to crops, fruits, pasturage and the way the work is diversified. The figures represent one year's net earnings: 400 pounds honey, averaging 14 cents.....$56.00 20 bushels cherries at $2.....60.00 20 hogs, averaging 160 pounds dressed, at 6 cents.....192.00 Butter and eggs, averaging $14 per month.....168.00 Timothy and alfalfa, surplus.....230.00 Garden truck and small fruits.....35.00 Poultry.....20.00 Earned by pasturage.....60.00

Total.....$521.00

In addition to these products, which were, in fact, only the surplus, the place yielded the oats, corn and hay which were fed out, and the butter, eggs, milk, vegetables and fruit consumed by the family. A little money was paid out for help in connection with the hay and other crops and in killing and marketing the hogs, but this was more than offset by the income of the dairy from three to six cows, the development of the apiary from eight to eighteen hives and the increase of the poultry from 100 to 200 Plymouth Rocks. Nine-tenths of the labor was performed by the two women who had heavy household cares as well.

They secured private customers for their honey, fruit, pork and dairy products, thus getting better than wholesale prices. The hay crops require little attention till cutting time, when the customers haul the hay. Hogs grow into little specks of everything and will thrive on carrots about as well as corn with a regular allowance of slops, which in this case were delivered from town at a trifling cost. The place has very small fields of corn and oats, crops which require expensive help.

THE FARMER'S GOOSE IS THE BIRD.

UP GO PRICES OF IMPLEMENTS.

Prices of farm implements will be advanced from 10 to 15 per cent for next year's deliveries.

Manufacturers say they are compelled to take this step because prices of all raw materials have advanced very sharply; and the truth of this statement is not disputed. Already over 100,000 tons of iron and steel for farm implements have been contracted at prices about 10 per cent higher than the contracts that were made a year ago. Pig iron, cold rolled shafting, bolts, nuts, washers, screws, and in fact, almost every item going into the manufacture of the implement line have advanced from 10 to 15 per cent next year's deliveries.

Lumber, particularly oak and hickory, have advanced steadily in price for the past few years. The average advance for 1908 over 1907 will not be far from $10 per thousand feet. Wagon rims and spokes have advanced for 1908 from 10 to 20 per cent.

Manufacturers in general feel that they are entitled to better prices. In fact, it is impossible for the manufacturers to continue selling their product at anything like the present prices. Implements have not kept pace with the advance in raw materials and the low prices that implements have been sold for have put the manufacturer where he claims he has not enjoyed any part of the general prosperity of the country. The raw material man and the consumer have reaped the full benefit.

The farmer has enjoyed the highest figure he has ever earned for his stock raising. In these times of prosperity when all of the farm products are selling at high prices, it is quite necessary that the farmer should have up-to-date machinery so that he may reduce the cost of production to a minimum and raise the largest crops possible.

There is not likely to be any reduction in prices for a long time to come, but the farmers may find some consolation that, even at the advance, the cost of implements will be only slightly greater than when corn was selling at 30 cents and wheat at 80 cents a bushel.

NOTES OF THE SHEEPFOLD.

It is a close race between the sheep and the hog to see which shall make the most money these days. Both are fine workers and both bid fair to be mortgage lifters for some years to come. Good plan to have some of each on every farm that is adapted to their keeping.

Seems as if every man would love sheep. But if he has poor fences he can't do it, that is a fixed fact.

The first thing a farmer ought to do after he makes up his mind to keep sheep is to fix up his fences. High, strong and close is the watchword. Then get the sheep and make money out of them.

Can you think of anything that will grow into money faster than lambs? Take a sheep that has twins in February. In May those lambs, if well cared for, will bring at least $15. For a few days after they come you must look after them. After that they will do all right if the mother has plenty of good food.

There is no greater mistake than that of breeding too long and too close. It will ruin the best flock in the world if kept up.

Do not make marked outcrosses in your flock. If you get a head let it be sheep outside your own breed let it be of a breed that has some kindred characteristics.

There are nearly 100,000,000 less sheep in the world now than there were in 1873. No wonder wool and mutton are so high. Why is not this a good time to invest in this stock? Can anybody answer that question?

Sheep can live on weeds, but don't make yours do it. Give them the best you can. They will do all the better for it.

NUBBINS OF FARM NEWS.

Reports from the City of Mexico say that within the past eighteen months over 10,000 American farmers have gone into that country. They are for the most part from Texas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory and the Southern states.

A report from Plainview, Texas, says that a 200-acre field of corn averages stalks eleven feet high. There is some reason for suspecting this story originated in a real estate office.

It is reported that large interests have cornered the hide market and that shoes will consequently be higher next year.

Richard Stryker, a farmer near Summerville, N. J., inflicted fatal injuries upon his aged father and on learning the result of his act committed suicide in jail.

The acting Secretary of Agriculture has issued an order that all farm animals imported into the United States shall undergo strict inspection.

The hay crop of Michigan is estimated worth $3,000,000.

INFLUENCES OF FERTILIZERS.

In our efforts to arrive at some simple but sure method of judging the most economical fertilizer to use upon our crops it is important that we have some knowledge of the influence that the three different elements of fertility exert upon plant growth.

It is generally regarded, and our observation teaches, that nitrogen causes a rank growth with dark green leaves, that if the nitrogen is in excess of the needs of plant growth that there will be a very heavy straw and leaf development at the expense of the seed and fruit production.

We have often seen a very heavy straw growth, but a scant seed crop on very nitrogenous soils.

Potash seems to have a beneficial effect in helping the plants to grow stiff straw; the potash seems to accumulate in the stem rather than the seed of plants.

A bulletin issued by the New York experiment station on fertilizers states that phosphoric acid when applied to a crop hastens maturity. It also causes a crop to bear more seed in proportion to the straw and it enables the plant to get more nitrogen from the soil than it would without the aid of the phosphoric acid.

It is not stated just how the phosphoric acid does this but it is a reasonable theory that the phosphate helps the soil to absorb ammonia from the air in the manner that common land plaster aids crops when applied since the dissolved bone phosphate contains about 50 per cent of land plaster.

These points are of importance in determining what fertilizer should be used, since the appearance of the crop when growing and also after maturity indicates in a measure the excessive as well as the lacking elements of fertility in the soil.—A. J. Legg.

Horses get too much oats or corn with a little hay and if meal is substituted for an equal portion of the usual daily routine of these grains improvement quickly follows.

My practical demonstrations convinced one big stable proprietor of the value of meal and whole corn and the improvement in the stock of that stable went up by leaps and bounds.

Heavy drafters, as well as show horses and carriage horses, should be fed a ration of meal at least once a day, because in addition to its value as a feed, it puts the animals in such condition of health that it brings out to full vigor their assimilative powers, thereby preventing stoppages and colic.

It provides the largest amount of nutriment obtainable when used with other feeds and makes for health, strength and staying power.

Most of the big express companies, breweries and transportation companies give their stock a portion of meal with every feed all the year around.

FOR HOG KILLING TIME.

Any farmer who has more than three pigs to kill ought to rig up a scalding tank and platform for the purpose of properly caring for the meat.

A scalding trough can be made of hardwood and will be water tight, provided the joints are put together with white lead. By the use of the chains the hog can be easily lifted to the platform. The whole construction is explained in the cut.

THOUGHTS FOR EVERY DAY.

Greater is the man who climbs an inch than he who slides a mile.—Ram's Horn.

"Whatsoever ye would that men would do to you, do ye even so to them."

My heart is God's little garden, And the fruit shall bear each day Are the things He shall see me doing, And the words He shall hear me say.

"I shall pass this way but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good I can do to my fellow human beings, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

The reason why men are so often disappointed in their search for God, is that they do not look for Him first of all where he should chiefly be sought—in the manifestations of Himself in their own minds and hearts.—David Swing.

Be strong! We are not here to play, to dream, to drift; We have hard work to do, and loads to lift; Shun not the struggle—face it; 'tis God's gift.

Lend a hand to the tempted. Lend a hand to the soul in the shadow, Lend a hand to the student at school, Lend a hand to those who are often misjudged, Lend a hand to the soul crushed with unpeppable loss. Lend a hand to everybody.

TO RESTRICT NEEDS TO THE MINIMUM POINT

President McCrea Says the Pennsylvania Will Have No New Work.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 1.—Declaring that the outlook for raising new capital next year is unsatisfactory, the directors of the Pennsylvania railroad company have decided to re-trench and after their meeting today, at which they declared the usual semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent, they gave out a statement that the only way would be the policy of the great corporation during 1908. The announcement came somewhat as a surprise in view of the statement issued from President McCrea's office Wednesday that the present earnings of the company are 11 per cent, greater than they were at the same period last year. The statement issued by the directors today is as follows:

The meeting was called at an early hour to enable the board to leave for an inspection of the work on the freight terminal at Greenville, N. J., and of the facilities of Long Island. It was explained that the date of the meeting was fixed by a standing regulation, so that the early hour had to be selected in order to give time for the trip.

In answer to an inquiry about the possible requirements of the Pennsylvania Railroad company for 1908, President McCrea said that in view of the unsatisfactory outlook for raising new capital in 1908, it was in his judgment necessary and prudent for the company to follow the policy of not beginning any new work or committing the company to any capital requirements except those absolutely necessary to economically handle its traffic. With that end in view, the Pennsylvania Railroad company would undoubtedly restrict its needs to a minimum and would not push the work on the New York tunnel extension or other uncompleted improvements as vigorously as had been done in the past.

This will somewhat delay the completion of the New York tunnel work as a whole, but progress on the East river tunnel, the erection of steel for the new terminal building in New York and work affecting the city streets and avenues will not be materially retarded by the proposed slower expenditure.

At 10 o'clock the directors and officials of the company left for New York.

The statement for September of the lines east of Pittsburgh directly operated shows an increase in the gross earnings for September, compared with the same month last year, of $1,291,000; increase in expenses of $1,858,000 and decrease in net earnings of $467,000. The increase in the net earnings for the nine months ending September 30th, compared with the same period last year, is $608,900.

Lines west of Pittsburgh and Erie, directly operated, show the following results for September:

Gross earnings, increase $859,700;

expenses, increase $797,000; net earnings, increase $62,600; net earnings for nine months, increase $1,871,100.

It is learned that the statement for the six months out of which the semi-annual dividend will be paid shows a net surplus after all charges and dividends of more than $8,500,000.

PETER COLLINS HURT.

Nickel Plate Switchman Struck by Engine in Yards.

Peter Collins, a Nickel Plate switchman and former member of the police force, sustained some scalp wounds and bruises on the body and head at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Hoffman lumber yards by being struck by the engine known as the house engine while standing at the side of the track. Fortunately he was outside the rails and the wheels did not hit him. The blow on the head rendered Mr. Collins partially unconscious and in that condition he was picked up by his fellow yardmen and carried into St. Joseph hospital, where his wounds were dressed. The chief injury is a scalp wound, but the skull was not fractured and Mr. Collins will soon be on duty again. Mr. Collins is a member of Fort Wayne lodge, No. 136, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and has taken a prominent part in every movement of recent years for the betterment of the brotherhood. He was deeply interested in the project which has resulted in the establishment of a room at St. Joseph hospital for the occupancy by unfortunates like himself and he is now there, receiving the best of skilled attention.

HUNGARIAN BADLY INJURED.

Worked Only Two Hours When Big Cask Fell on Him.

A Hungarian who took employment with Section Foreman James O'Leary, of the Pennsylvania road, this morning was badly injured two hours later and is now in St. Joseph hospital in a semi-conscious condition, though it is believed he will recover. His chief injuries consist of a wound which extends across the top of the head from a point over the eyes to the back between the ears. The man was working at the freight house, when a big cask filled with crockery and weighing nearly a ton fell off a truck and struck him a glancing blow in its descent. The poor fellow could not speak English and was unable to write his name because of the pain of his wounds, and the railway people were unable to learn much about him.

HAD AN INTERESTING TIME.

Friendship Study club of the Grand International Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers had a Halloween party yesterday afternoon, and Mrs. Grant Rhodes and Mrs. J. C. Pearson were the hostesses. The lights were of the primitive character, being lanterns and candles, the latter in pumpkin holders, and yellow chrysanthemums in vases were distributed about the rooms. The meeting was one of the best of the season.

VICTIM OF BOYS' PRANK.

One of the victims of the Halloween pranks of boys last night is Pennsylvania Engineer L. M. Kyler. After supper Mr. Kyler stepped out at the front door of his residence on South

Hanna street and fell two or three feet, injuring one of his knees so badly that he will be unable to work for a few days. The step leading to the door had been removed and Mr. Kyler did not notice its absence until he fell to the ground.

NEW PASSENGER ENGINES.

Pennsylvania Northwest System Gets Five of Standard Type.

The five passenger engines assigned to the Pennsylvania Northwest system and just out of the locomotive shop are being delivered today. One comes to this city and will soon be running in and out, hauling passenger trains, three will go to the Eastern division, between Pittsburg and Crestline, and one will be put into service on the Cleveland and Pittsburg division. All of these engines are of the E-2-B class and in main features are like the Atlantic engines that have been in the passenger service for the past year.

INSPECTING WESTERN LINES.

P. R. R. Officials Making Trip Over Pennsylvania West.

Tomorrow a special train carrying General Superintendent Creighton, of the Pennsylvania Railroad lines east of Pittsburg, and several of the division superintendents, will pass over the Western division of the Pennsylvania. General Superintendent A. M. Schoyer, of the Northwest system, and Supt. J. B. McKim will accompany the party. Mr. McKim will go to Chicago for that purpose this evening. The train bearing the officials will pass through this city about 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

COMING TO ENTERTAINMENT.

There will be several auxiliary ladies from Huntington, Garrett and Bellevue here tonight to attend the entertainment of the local auxiliary to the O. R. C. In fact a few are here now, included being Mesdames Chris Sauer, Ed Horton, George Harper and G. W. Zeigler, of Bellevue. The entertainment will be full of interest to those who will be fortunate enough to be there.

NEW WABACH ENGINES.

The local shop officials of the Wabach have been advised of the coming tomorrow of six more of the combined engines from the Paterson Locomotive works, to be adjusted and tried out by experts here before they are turned over to the transportation department for service on the road. So far twenty-two of these engines have left the shops in Paterson and all are in service but the six coming tomorrow.

FOUR DEATHS IN YEAR.

The death last night of Engineer Jacob Worman, of the Pennsylvania, recalls the death within eleven months of three other yard engineers long in the service of the company. David Moore was struck by an engine as he was crossing the tracks on route home from the round house and Engineer Mason and Engineer Greenlich died from sickness.

WORK TRAIN IN SERVICE AGAIN.

The Warsaw work train, on the Pennsylvania road, which had been out of service a week on account of repairs to its engine, was put in operation again this morning. Engineer John C. Polhamus and Fireman G. Nulf, who had been spending the week here, have resumed their respective duties on the engine of the train.

NEW EMPLOYEES AT SHOPS.

A. E. Smith, a car repairman; Bernard Blank, a tinner, and W. W. Beauman, a helper in the upholstering department, are new employees at the Pennsylvania shops. Mr. Blank worked at the east shops once before, resigning to go west six months ago. He found no place as good as Fort Wayne.

SHIPPING FACTORY PRODUCTS.

Among the shipments from the Bass works today were a 16x36-inch cylinder engine to the C. H. Bronnell company, Peru, Ind., and an immense fly-wheel to the Tyler Tube and Pipe company, Washington, Pa.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

A. W. Betz is a new fireman on the Grand Rapids and Indiana road.

J. J. Zembra is a new engine cleaner at the Pennsylvania round house.

After an illness of two weeks, A. J. Bobay resumed work at the Pennsylvania shops this morning.

Conductor and Mrs. C. W. Zeigler, of Bellevue, are here for a short visit with friends. Mr. Zeigler has been sick for two weeks and is not yet entirely well.

General Foreman G. E. Graham, of the paint department of the Pennsylvania, has returned from Crestline, where he attended the funeral of his mother, Mrs. M. J. Graham.

Foreman Charles Knothe, of the lath department of the Pennsylvania machine shop, has returned to his duties after an absence of a few days on account of the death of a relative.

SELL THE M'CURDY FIXINGS.

Furniture of Late Insurance Man's Private Office Are Bought.

New York, Nov. 1.—Sale has been begun of furniture and objects of art which used to adorn the private office of President Richard A. McCurdy, of the Mutual Life Insurance company; the office of his son, Robert S. Mc-Curdy, who was general manager, and other offices under the former regime.

The present management of the company decided that these fittings could be profitably dispensed with, hence the sale is taking place at the Fifth avenue art galleries. The first day $8,845 was netted. More than four hundred persons attended, most of whom were women. The furniture offered was by Linke of Paris, and consisted of finely carved parlor, drawing-room and office sets. Originally, it is said, these pieces cost $70,000.

The best price thus far has been $500 for a solid mahogany table, eight feet by five, Louis XVI style. Among the most conspicuous buyers have been Mrs. Richard Hudnut, John H. Flagler, Jr., and Gilbert Raftery, the last named a Pittsburg coal operator.

Coal Dealers Don't Like It

Our Prize Stewart beats their time. They can't make much money out of it. It doesn't burn enough coal to suit them. They have been used to the old kind, consuming almost a ton of coal a day. Seriously, this stove is the most economical stove we know anything about. It will save its cost in coal in a short time. The Prize is here to be looked at. Call and see it. A liberal discount on all heating stoves.
